M'CALL MAKES SILENT FIGHT

SENATE CANDIDATE "TOO BUSY TO ANSWER" QUESTIONS

GLUCOSE IN MACAROON MAKING

How macaroons are made "gummy, pulpy and chewy" by the use of glucose was described at length by expert witnesses at the hearing before Judge Dodge in the Federal District Court today. It was the case against F. B. Washburn & Co. of Brockton, bakers. A box of their macaroons furnished the principal exhibit in the case, and the government alleged that they were not true macaroons in that they were adulterated with glucose.

The principal points in today's testimony were:

Macaroons made without glucose become hard after a few days.

Macaroons made with glucose are nice and gummy after weeks, or even months, and except to an expert, appear perfectly fresh.

Practically all the "pastes" made and furnished to bakers to "use in macaroons are glucose mixtures.

William F. Heide, a member of the firm of Henry Heide & Co., which has been much in the courts since the passage of the pure food act, was a witness today.

Mr. Heide, who appeared as an expert, gave the following formula for macaroon paste, which he said was the best on the market:

Fifteen per cent. glucose; 38 per cent. sugar and 32 per cent. cocoanut.

Why Glucose Is There.

W. A. Garland, assistant United States District Attorney who is prosecuting the case against the Brockton bakers, asked Mr. Heide: "Why is the glucose in there?"

The witness replied: "The confectioners and bakers want something pliable and elastic."

Mr. Heidde testified as follows: "We are the largest manufacturers of cocoanut paste in the country. We have been making this paste for four years. We keep a large amount in stock and sell from the stock. The glucose in the paste makes your macaroons taste nice. It is the glucose that makes them nice and chewy. Most bakers buy this paste ready for use. If no glucose is used, the paste becomes hard. Glucose keep in an entirely pulp substance. There are five kinds of cocoanut paste, as follows: Almond, cocoanut, filbert, hazel nut and peanut. There are a few other nut compounds, but they are rare.

He further testified: "This cocoanut paste is made from glucose, cocoanut and sugar. Without glucose, the paste will quickly become hard and the bakeries want the other kind.

"Some of our almond paste is made with, and some without glucose. We have discontinued the use of glucose at times."

"Why?"

"Because of the common prejudice against glucose held by some people. The people object to glucose."

Q.—Suppose you received an order for "almond paste?" Would you send paste containing glucose, or without it? A.—That would depend on what we had on hand, and what we thought the purchaser wanted.

About All Use Glucose.

After Mr. Heide left the stand he said, in answer to questions:

"It is safe to say that practically all the macaroons on sale in bakeries contain glucose, unless the bakers make their own paste. Some bakers do make their own paste, however.

"Our paste contains glucose—about fifteen per cent.—In the cocoanut. The glucose and sugar together serve as a preservative for the cocoanut, which would otherwise sour. We used to use benzoate of soda to prolong the life of the cocoanut, but this practice has been discontinued.

"Macaroons made without glucose will become dry in two or three days. Macaroons with glucose will last weeks or months without drying. The glucose prevents granulation. It is not used to cheapen the macaroons.

"Glucose costs about two cents and sugar

Alderman Charles A. Furness of Everett was killed instantly today in the freight yards of the Boston & Maine railroad in Charlestown by a train. His head was severed.

Mother "Wanted a Girl" and "Irene" Wore Skirts Till 18

VICTOR, Col., Jan. 9.—After masquerading since childhood as a girl, Irene Moynahan, eighteen, until Christmas a student in the Victor High School, has been found to be a boy and is now on his way dressed in boy's clothing to join his father and brother in Bisbee, Ariz.

Mrs. Timothy Moynahan, Irene's mother, refuses to give any reason for the deception other than that she "wanted a girl." The father and brother, according to the mother, did not know anything about the deception and they were to be informed for the first time in a letter that Irene was taking with him to Arizona.

The facts in the case were discovered by Marshal Welleke of La Junta, who arrested Irene on a train on suspicion that he was a fugitive trying to get out of the State. Disguised as a girl

M'NEELY, SUICIDE, DEFAULTER

Major Frank A. McNeeley of Albany, assistant adjutant-general of the third brigade, New York National Guard, whose mysterious death at the Thorndike House, No. 76 Green street, West End, last September was declared by relatives and friends to be an unsolved murder, was a defaulter in his capacity as custodian of the funds of New York State armories, according to dispatches today from Albany.

The first report of "suicide by gas" was scouted by Albany friends, who declared that the major must have been drugged and then robbed. But the definition today from Albany today indicates the officer probably died by his own hand.

Secretary of Board.

Major McNeeley was secretary of the State Armory Commission and, as such, had charge of the funds. Attorney-General Carmody of New York, according to the Albany messages today gave a formal opinion that McNeeley had defaulted.

The Major's armory fund accounts were short $2,962.42. This fund was for the payment of repairs and improvements on State militia property.

The Attorney-General points out that the fund shown a deficit which had been diverted to other uses and that McNeely had died without making the shortage good.

Found Dead from Gas.

Major McNeeley was found dead in a room which he had taken at the Thorndike House the night before. The windows and doors were closed and gas was flowing from an open jet. The Major's gold watch, jewelled pin, suit case and light overcoat, which he was said to have taken with him from Albany, were missing. A cheap watch was found on the bureau. There was a cut or small gash on the back of the head.

The major had registered under the name of "A. Nels." It was said he had been brought to the hotel by two men. Friends in Boston called for an investigation, declaring the officer had been drugged, robbed and killed.

Medical Examiner Magrath performed an autopsy and reported death due to gas poisoning, with no indication of violence.

WINTHROP ELOPERS ARE WELCOMED HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Marsh, taken on ocean at Winthrop last Summer, when Mr. Marsh met Miss Alice Roberts.

Wilbur Marsh and his bride, formerly Miss Alice Roberts, both of Boston and Winthrop, who eloped and were married in Long Island City, L. I., returned to Boston today, went to the Commonwealth Hotel, telephoned to the bride's mother and quickly received her forgiveness and an invitation to "come right home."

Marsh is twenty years old, the son of Edward L. Marsh of No. 70 Prospect avenue in the Great Head section of Winthrop. His bride is twenty-two years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus O. Roberts of No. 64 Prospect avenue, Winthrop, only two doors from the Marsh home. She has been a bookkeeper in a Boston office.

The couple made arrangements to return to Winthrop to make explanations and receive forgiveness.

Friends declare the elopement is the result of a Summer romance.

The bride's father has never seen his new son-in-law to know him by name or sight.

All Greek to Father.

Papa Roberts said:

"It is all Greek to me. So far as I know, my daughter Alice is visiting friends in Springfield, and what she should be doing in Long Island City is a puzzle to me. I am sure she was not engaged to any Wilbur Marsh when she left home; in fact, I did not know until today that I had a neighbor here of that name.

"Of course I cannot deny that she took out a marriage license in Long Island City, for I know nothing about it. I believe her to be in Springfield, and this marriage license business is a mystery to me.

"Of course, I may have seen Wilbur Marsh a hundred times pass by my house, but I haven't even the slightest knowledge of his appearance.

According to a dispatch from New York the couple went to the city clerk at Long Island City and asked for the license. "Don't you know it is a secret?" they both asked the clerk.

Thomas W. Lawson is sued for $100,000 by George R. Learnard of Narragansett Pier in the suffolk superior Court.

SENATOR BATTLE IS RESUMED

Congressman John W. Weeks and Samuel W. McCall, the two leading candidates now in the contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator to succeed W. Murray Crane, became captains in the field in person in their own campaigns this noon.

Congressman Weeks opened headquarters in a suite of rooms on the second floor of the Parker House. Representative Channing H. Cox, his field marshal, was on hand and Republican legislators came in steady stream.

Mr. Weeks says:

I am sure there will not be a single deserter from my ranks. I feel just as sure, too, that I will receive enough votes today to secure the nomination on Saturday.

Congressman McCall took charge of his campaign from his offices on the sixth floor of the Exchange building. There he met Speaker Grafton D. Cushing, his floor manager. Representative Clarence A. Barnes of Mansfield and other Republicans.

One legislator said to McCall:

"You appear as happy as a lark, Congressman."

McCall said cheerfully:

"Why shouldn't I. I surprised them yesterday and, before tonight is over, I'll give them another surprise. I am just as confident as confident can be that tonight I'll be the Republican choice for Senator.

The McCall forces let it be known early in the day that this afternoon's session of the Republican caucus, beginning at 3 o'clock, was to be kept up without adjournment until their man should be nominated, even if it took all night. That's the willingness they served on the Weeks forces.

When the caucus adjourned last evening McCall led with 72 votes to Weeks's 67. Ninety-four votes are required for a nomination of the candidate.

Representative Clarence A. Barnes, McCall leader, stated today when he reached the State House:

"McCall will have more votes on the first ballot today than on the last ballot yesterday. He will gain steadily after the first ballot. There is not a single wavterer in the McCall ranks. The outcome will be the nomination of Congressman McCall."

Representative Channing H. Cox of Boston was just as certain that Congressman Weeks would win. He said:

"We expect accessions to the vote of Congressman Weeks on the first ballot today. This vote, we have reason to believe, will put Congressman Weeks in the lead. He was only five behind McCall yesterday on the last ballot taken. We have not lost a man since. We expect the nomination of Weeks today."

SENATORS TO HEAR MAN ACCUSED OF OIL LETTER THEFT

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—A summons to appear before the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, January 11, has been served here on Willie W. Winkfield, a negro, said to have taken from the files of the Standard Oil Company the famous "Rockefeller letters" made public through publication by William Randolph Hearst. Detectives, deputy United States marshals and secret service operatives had been seeking Winkfield, and he was found by a deputy who overheard a telephone conversation giving the negro's whereabouts.

M'CALL IS 'TOO BUSY' TO ANSWER

Congressman Samuel W. McCall, who leads in the Republican caucus poll for United States Senator, refuses to commit himself on the question of a direct primary.

In his office at No. 53 State street today he said he was too busy to answer a series of questions covering the question He said:

No, no! It is out of the question now. Just say that I will take the matter up at the earliest possible moment. I simply cannot, even for the AMERICAN, give the answers asked for today.

It is impossible for me, at this time, to give these questions the careful consideration their importance warrants. As you can see (indicating several callers), almost every minute of my time is taken up. I shall, however, be pleased to take up the questions with you later.

Refuses to Name Time.

Asked to name a specific time when this reply could be looked for, Congressman McCall refused to say whether his "later" might come tomorrow, Sunday or a week from today. Neither would he go much as intimate his present day attitude on the election of a United States Senator or a direct vote of the people. Here are the questions:

1—Have you not advocated the direct election of United States Senators by the people of the several States?

2—Now that you lead in the Republican caucus, do you still believe that the people themselves ought to select their Senators?

3—Do you think that any man ought to be elected to represent Massachusetts in the Senate who may not be satisfactory to the State?

4—Having declared that the direct election of United States Senators is the right process by which to ascertain the sentiment of the citizens on this question, do you now believe that almost four Republicans in a total of 240 members of the Legislature are competent to declare the sentiment of the whole body of citizens?

5—Since a large majority of the total vote passed for members of the present Legislature was against the Republican candidates, and since the Republican candidates are in control only by virtue of a gerrymander of the districts, which nullifies about 50,000 Democratic votes, do you think in view of this declaration that the people ought to elect United States Senators themselves that the present

The Massachusetts General Court protests against the provision as being contrary to the principles and traditions of the United States and a tending to prevent the admission to this country of many honest, industrious and sturdy persons who would make good and valuable citizens."

GLUCOSE USED TO MAKE 'GOOD' MACAROONS

about fire, so that the glucose macaroons are cheaper—but this is not the reason glucose is used."

His Glucose Macaroons.

The next witness was Burley S. Hall, a Waltham baker. Mr. Hall had some of his own macaroons, and tested some made by the government, without the use of glucose. He testified as follows, in part:

"These macaroons made by the government were made of cocoanut that had begun to turn. They have dried up also and crumble easily. Glucose macaroons would not crumble. My recipe is something like this for cocoanut macaroons:

Thirty pounds of cocoanut.
Fifteen pounds of granulated sugar.
Seven and one-half pounds glucose.
Some white of egg, cream of tartar and soda—about a pint in all.
Three to four pounds of fermenting—trade solution.

I try to use as much glucose as I can. This makes the macaroons last longer.

None of His Business.

A. Haskins Hosmer of South Hadley, Mass., testified that he worked eleven years as a salesman for Healy, Heide & Company, who are said to have sold the Washburn company their cocoanut paste. He said that in making macaroons, cocoanut, glucose, sugar and the white of egg were used. He added that a common mixture included twenty-five per cent. glucose. He was asked:

"Did you know that Heide almond paste contained glucose?" A.—No; that wasn't my end of the business.

Q.—Suppose a customer ordered almond paste, what would they get? A.—Heide's Genuine Almond paste.

Q.—Was the customer informed by you that there was glucose in the paste? A.—No; it wasn't my business to know that.

He testified there were four different grades of almond paste, their prices determined "by the quality of the almonds and the amount of sugar used."

N. E. Drake, president of the Drake Brothers Company, bakers, of Brooklyn and Boston, testified that glucose was necessary to make the commercial macaroon. He declared glucose improved the quality of the product.

Legislature is competent to represent the sentiment of the State?

6—Since you have declared your belief that United States Senators should bear their credentials directly from the people, do you now believe that if you are elected by the gerrymander process which in its last step would enable a minority of the Legislature, which itself represents a minority of the voters at the last election, the Legislature can give you a certificate that you represent the sentiment of the State?

7—Your managers are attempting to obtain ninety-four votes in the present Republican caucus. That is a minority of the Legislature, which has 240 members. Now since the 164 Republicans, who constitute a majority of the Legislature, represent only a minority of the voters at the last election, are you satisfied to accept an election under such circumstances?

8—The representatives of the Progressive party filed a bill providing that the sentiment of the State on the question of Senator shall be ascertained forthwith by holding a special vote of the citizens who are qualified to vote at elections. This may legally be done. Are you not required by the logic of your position to favor of the direct election of United States Senators to urge your friends to support this proposal of the Progressive party?

9—Are you unwilling to submit your claims to the judgment of the people, as you have proposed that the claims of other men ought to be so submitted?

10—Are you willing to submit your present ambition to the people of this Commonwealth?

11—Are you not willing, while you are in the lead in the Republican caucus, to prove that you are a sincere advocate of the direct election of United States Senators by urging your friends to support the bill which the Progressive party proposes for ascertaining the public sentiment on this important question?

WOMAN SAYS PANTHER WAS UNSEAWORTHY

Mrs. William F. Hildreth of Brookton, whose son Albert was a member of the crew of the missing ship Panther, today declared she was on board two weeks ago, just before the boat sailed, and that the ship was unseaworthy. She said: "The Panther was loaded to the water's edge and had not a single water-tight compartment. I feel sure that it has sunk."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The naval tug Sonoma, the convoy of the repair ship Panther, which left Brooklyn Navy Yard two hours ahead of the repair ship, has arrived at Guantanamo, Cuba, according to Navy Department advices today. The tug, under the command of Chief Boatswain William Derrington of Massachusetts, reported that she passed through a gale on Friday last and got out of touch with the Panther, of which she has heard nothing since.

Although the little boat was almost swamped by the huge waves, she escaped with little damage. All her lifeboats and superstructure, however, were carried away, and she proceeded to Guantanamo under half power. The Sonoma was not equipped with wireless, and, therefore, was unable to report to any naval station along the coast.

An unconfirmed report that the Panther had sunk stirred the Navy Department today. The rumor was flashed from Charleston, S. C., to Admiral Andrews, chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

"This is only a rumor, and there is nothing definite in the report," replied Admiral Andrews.

Persistent reports that the Panther had been sunk were based on a supposed message reading "Panther has gone down off Charleston, S. C." said to have been picked up by a wireless station.

Search of the Atlantic ocean for twenty-four hours by the whole North Atlantic fleet, has failed to reveal any trace of the Panther.

The Panther, with about 120 men on board, sailed from the Brooklyn navy yard last Thursday afternoon for Guantanamo, Cuba. She should have arrived there Monday, and is now two days overdue.

The Panther is a floating machine repair shop. She is a single screw ship, capable of making nine knots, and has a displacement of 3,380 tons.

ROXBURY BRIDE OF G. E. ROEWER, JR., WHO NEEDN'T OBEY

With a special ceremony, written by the bridegroom, in which the word "obey" was omitted, Miss Rosa Helen Heinzen, daughter of Mrs. Karl F. Heinzen, became the bride of George E. Roewer, Jr., at the home of the bride's mother, No. 45 Centre street, Roxbury. Mr. Roewer is the attorney who defended Ettor and Giovannitti in the trial growing out of the Lawrence strike.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, the recent Socialist candidate for Governor. The service was poetic in form, containing extracts from Walt Whitman and Shelley, and dispensing with the word "obey" and reference to the Deity. Two carved gold rings were exchanged. More than 300 guests were present.

Miss Heinzen is a graduate of Radcliffe, 1907, and has been active as a suffragist and social worker. She is the daughter of the late Karl F. Heinzen and a granddaughter of both Karl Heinzen, German political writer and revolutionist, and of Louis Prang, art publisher and lithographer. Mr. Roewer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Roewer of Jamaica Plain. He has twice been candidate for Attorney-General of the Commonwealth on the Socialist ticket.

A. S. BIGELOW'S TAXES WIPE OUT COHASSET DEBT

The town of Cohasset, after a two years' fight, has been handed a check for $53,186 from the securities of $2,000,000 placed with the New England Trust Company by Albert S. Bigelow of Cohasset and Boston, one of the great "copper kings," as a tax on Mr. Bigelow's personal estate. This practically wipes out the town debt of $65,000.

The town levied a tax on $2,500,000, the $500,000 being in excess of the face value of the securities, as according to law no declaration had been made to the assessors by the trust company or Mr. Bigelow, and the assessors placed their own value upon them.

Mr. Bigelow placed with the New England Trust Company two years ago securities valued at $2,000,000, pending the suit with the Old Dominion Copper Company, which had been in a large number of courts, including the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Bigelow lost his suit, and the Old Dominion stockholders will receive the securities less the Cohasset tax. The Cohasset assessors began a hunt for these securities at the time the suit was filed, for the purpose of placing a tax on them as a part of Mr. Bigelow's personal estate.

Enlists Trefry in Fight.

Louis D. Brandeis and Charles Tyler were the attorneys in the suit, but they could give but little information to Assessor William O. Souther, Jr., of Cohasset, who was "gumshoeing" for him.

Mr. Souther was a new man on the boards of assessors and selectmen. He was full of energy, but had been told that it was well nigh impossible to collect.

He enlisted the services of State Tax Commissioner Trefry, who started out to hunt for the tax on the part of the State. Cohasset levied on the new valuation for $2,500,000 and the State levied for $2,000,000.

The trust company and the lawyers tried every way to meet the arguments of Mr. Souther, the lively young Cohasset assessor, but last week turned a creek over to him for $53,186, the tax on $2,500,000 for two years with interest.

Trefry Is Balked.

The State Tax Collector found that he could not tax the securities, as Mr. Bigelow had assigned these to the trust company as a part of his personal estate pending the settlement of the suit.

The Cohasset assessors had been taxing Albert S. Bigelow for real estate owned in Cohasset for some ten or twelve years, but he never declared any such amount of personal estate.

He had been known all these years as one of the richest men in the country, holding much valuable stock in copper mines.

Not until he turned over to the bank these securities awaiting judgment of his suit, did the assessors been able to get any such declaration from him regarding his wealth.

William O. Souther, Jr., defeated Mr. Bigelow's brother, Joseph S. Bigelow, another Boston banker, as assessor and immediately got busy on the assessing department of the town.

May Leave Cohasset.

The magnificent Summer home of Mr. Bigelow known as "The Cedars" on Jerusalem road, and another house known as "Holiday House," where Mr. Bigelow and his family live the greater part of the holidays when they didn't care to open the big house or entertain guests, has been placed upon the market at $130,000. The report in Cohasset today is current that Mr. Bigelow may have decided to leave the town.

The mansion house includes about forty rooms with nine baths. The "Holiday House" has seventeen rooms and four baths.

The estate comprises twenty acres with stable, garage, gardener's house, two apartments over the stables, beautiful gardens and tennis courts.

$30,000,000 HEIR FREED FROM ASYLUM

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Lawrence Perin, 30, whose father left an estate of $30,000,000, was declared sane by Supreme Court Justice Amend. He was committed to Bloomingdale Asylum two years ago, after spectacular experiences in Spain, at her parents' home in Paris and announced that he had power of life and death over the inhabitants.

LONG JAIL TERMS FOR SUFFRAGETTE MAIL DESTROYERS

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Long sentences were passed today on two of the militant suffragettes, many of whom in recent months have engaged in a campaign of destruction of the mails. May Billinghurst and Louisa Gay, two of the first to be arrested in connection with those outrages, were brought up for trial at the Old Bailey today, and were condemned to eight months' imprisonment each.

May Billinghurst, who is a cripple and goes about on a tricycle, already has been imprisoned on several occasions in connection with the suffrage campaign.

The evidence showed that letter boxes throughout the centre and the West End of London had been damaged, together with their contents, by means of acids.

Court Decides Wife May Refill Bottles

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The Court of Special Sessions has decided that housewives who use pickle, catsup bottles, horse radish and preserve jars as receptacles for home-made dainties, do not violate the law by refilling them, "provided the bottles are not offered for public sale."

The decision was the result of an action against Joseph Polanski of No. 638 Sixth avenue by a large manufacturing concern which charged him with refilling their bottles. He did not deny the charge, saying he had not offered his product for sale.

79 WELLESLEY GIRLS FINED $1; TRAIN ON NEW HAVEN IS LATE

Seventy-nine Wellesley College girls are today lamenting the fact that time is money and that the New Haven Railroad cost them 180 of those golden minutes of which the poet sings. The college has assessed each of the seventy-nine $1 because they were late in registering, following the holiday recess.

The Federal express was three hours late and the girls "just simply couldn't arrive on time. They had a "perfectly horrid" time, as they recounted to their more fortunate friends at home-coming fudge parties.

Among the girls marooned on the train was Eleanor Pillsbury, house president of Wellesley College Hall. It is her duty to safeguard the welfare of the girls in her dormitory, boy for privileged messages. He is needed."

Radcliffe Girls Must Not Use 'Snips'

A crisis has arrived at Radcliffe! The dean has issued an ultimatum! A rank has resulted among the girls!

The cause of it is Snips, the official boy. He spends his time playing with the children of Professor Wate, indulging in such rude games as football, on the Radcliffe campus. The girls have been in the habit of using him to hand in themes, to take messages from one to the other, and even to post letters.

As a result the office business has been held up often, as many as ten minutes at a time. Something had to be done.

Then Dean Coes issued a statement, had notices sent to the girls, and posted in conspicuous places. "Students are requested not to use the college messenger boy for private messages. He is needed."

EGG PRICE WILL STAY AT 24 CENTS, EVEN IF COLD AFFECTS MARKET

In spite of the cold wave in Boston from the West, twenty-four cents will be the price of Housekeepers' League eggs, according to Harry P. Cassidy. While eggs at stores throughout the city are again trying for altitude records, a hundred cases a day of the twenty-four-cent eggs are being sold by the league, and Boston can get the equal of the best storage eggs in the market at a price well below the market's mark.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

As a result of the cold, the market price of eggs is climbing, and a steady rise has begun that will probably last for a month. The cold wave has made impossible the lowering of the Housekeepers' League price, but it will not force the price of league eggs upward.

Conditions in the storage houses still warrant the twenty-four-cent price, and a hundred cases a day are being sold at that figure.

In the associated storage houses of the country, which include only the big houses, there were on January first, 8,527,700 cases of eggs. January 1, 1912—a year ago, there were 507,500 cases in storage. That gives a surplus of 350,000 cases over the figures of a year ago, in spite of the tremendous withdrawal in December.

The Butter Market.

As a corollary, it is interesting to see how the butter market stands. January 1, 1913, there were in storage 25,322,000 pounds of butter. A year before, January 1, 1912, there were in storage 18,456,000 pounds. That gives a tremendous surplus for this year. The withdrawal for December was 13,800,000 pounds.

It is these conditions that make the egg war a success. They make possible also a similar war on butter if the Housekeepers' League could undertake it. But the butter price could not be put so low, for the retailer is making not so large a profit in butter as in eggs.

The egg stations established by the league have kept up their business, and with the rise in price in the stores began to win new customers rapidly. Miss Mary Duffee, the old bicycle rider, who, in his advertising stores at No. 11½ Central street, Cambridge, is selling 400 crates a day, has the names of those in two thousand families who have bought Housekeepers' League eggs from him. He said:

"There is a store up Columbia street a few blocks that has a sign in the window, 'Egg station, twenty-four cents.' Then are selling eggs of a poor quality, and many of their complaints come home to me, people supposing theirs are League eggs. I have a notion to go over there and straighten the matter straight."

Egg Station In Voting Booth.

Many stores in Boston have put up "egg station" signs in an effort to defeat the League trade also, but only those stores with "Housekeepers' League Eggs, twenty-four cents," in their windows are entitled to such stations.

Disaster threatened the egg station of Miss Jean Morrison, in a building known on Paris street, East Boston, Tuesday. The election Commissioners who were busily furnishing the booth wished to prepare for the election, and asked Miss Morrison to move. Miss Morrison went to see the Mayor, and secured permission to continue the work of selling eggs through the week, up to Saturday night. Then the station will be closed Monday and Tuesday, and may be reopened the following week. Mrs. W. A. Morrison, who had helped Miss Morrison, said:

"We had almost 1,500 dozen eggs at this station, in the face of the competition of the grocery stores on Paris street, which also handles the League eggs. And we have not had a single complaint that a little investigation did not set right. The eggs are first-class. We use them in our own home—lots of them, and they suit us. One of our customers, for example, is not content with getting a dozen eggs, but must have twenty dozen. Then she will bring a dozen empty cartons, and there were eight people and three servants to be fed at his home alone. An egg is the best food in the world, that's all there is to it. I am very thankful for the running the station. We had eggs for Christmas, also for me, and it was the first real Christ mas dinner we had for years."

Sales Are Brisk.

John L. O'Neil of No. 171 Hampshire street, Cambridge, has kept up his early record of big sales. Seeley Brothers of Newtonville conducted another successful station. P. F. Hannon of No. 4222 Washington street, Roxbury, opened a popular station with three cases. Mrs. Sarah Lee of No. 92 Eutaw street, East Boston, took two to three cases every day, and is still selling. J. A. Bowman of 500 Main street, Charlestown, who started his egg station with fifteen cases and took five cases a day regularly after that, telephoned in for more.

If there's a man out near me here who has a gun in his window, Cheap Eggs, 24 Cents a Dozen," of course, he can't sell real fresh eggs at that price, and most people who see the sign know that he is a faker. It hasn't hurt my business in the least, and the demand for the League eggs is still strong."

The publicity given the egg war and the leaders in the League has drawn letters from all parts of New England. One man whose Mrs. J. L. Stearns suggesting the use of the postoffices as a method of sales by mail. His plan embraced the posting of bulletins in the postoffices, giving information as to markets, prices and the crops in all parts of the country. Thomas Balavin of Norwood wrote Mrs. Stearns in part as follows:

Norwood Wants Eggs.

Where I work here there are a thousand men and women employed. There are other big concerns in Norwood besides. The population is at least 10,000.

But we have to get from Boston most of our provisions, and we have to pay for eggs as they goodness. Cannot we here in Norwood start the twenty-four-cent League a disseminating? I and my colleagues here would do all in our power to help the work along."

Ferdinand Baker of East Falmouth wrote to Mrs. Stearns offering a thousand bushels of turnips at forty-five cents a bushel, delivered in Boston. This is at the rate of less than a cent a pound, while, according to Mr. Baker, turnips are retailing in Boston at three cents a pound.

These are but a few of the letters the egg war has evoked. The lesson of the war has been the power of the combination. If women would only realize it, it is in their power to reduce the cost of living by simply concerted action, by refusing to buy either for wholesale buying. As soon as they must deal with an individual grocer, determined class of customers, the rotting and subsidiary retailers found in all cities will either go out of business or mend their ways.

ONE GREAT UNION CHURCH COMING, SAYS DR. MANN

One great universal church was predicted by the Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., pastor of Trinity church, at the missionary meeting at St. Paul's Cathedral. He declared there was a yearning among the Christian Churches for a reunion, and that if there is to be a unification, the great Catholic Church, the Episcopal Church would play its part. Dr. Mann said:

"In this day of division there is a longing for a reunion of the Christian Churches, and the Episcopal Church has a mission that cannot be done by any other church.

"If there is to be a uniting of the great Catholic Church, the Episcopal Church will play its part."

FEAR THAT GERMAN EXPLORERS PERISHED IN ARCTIC WASTES

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Captain Berg, who is destined to command the ninth German Arctic expedition, received a telegram today from Captain Ritscher which says that the Herzog Ernest is frozen in at Treubenburg Bay and that no news has been received from Lieutenant Schroeder-Stranzz and companions, who left the ship in September on a sledging expedition. The message says:

The ship's crew left the Herzog Ernest on September 5. The meteorographer, Dr. Rutiger, was left behind at the White Bay station with a frozen foot. He had provisions until January.

MRS. LILY JOHNSON, DEFENDANT IN BIG ALIENATION SUIT

TIES UP CASH OF HUSBAND AND ALLEGED RIVAL

Seeking $25,000 for alleged alienation of her husband's affections, in a suit against Mrs. Lily A. Johnson, a prominent choirwoman of Somerville, Mrs. Grace W. Robbins was granted an injunction by Judge Marcus Morton, restraining Mrs. Johnson and Dr. Horace Manley Robbins from removing or allowing to be removed the contents of their safe deposit boxes. The court also ordered that the property of the respondents be attached for $10,000.

Mrs. Robbins charged that Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Robbins were about to leave the State.

Dr. and Mrs. Robbins were married at Warren, Me., on November 28, 1906, and lived together in Somerville until about a year ago. Mrs. Robbins charges that Mrs. Johnson knowingly alienated the affections of her husband and deprived her of his company.

Mrs. Johnson is the widow of Frank O. Johnson, a former well-known marketman in Boston, and first exalted ruler of the Somerville lodge of Elks, who died about a year ago. He was one of the best known Odd Fellows in the State. She was noble grand of Logal Rebekah Lodge 62, a member of the order of the Eastern Star, and prominent in Somerville club life.

A few months before Mr. Johnson's death his wife filed a libel for divorce in the Middlesex Superior Court, charging cruel and abusive treatment. Before the suit was reached for trial Mrs. Johnson learned of her husband's serious illness and a reconciliation took place. He died shortly afterward at his home on Medford street, Somerville.

It is charged by Mrs. Robbins that her husband, who has been a successful dentist for several years, with offices on Hanover street, became infatuated with Mrs. Johnson shortly after Mr. Johnson's death, and has been constantly in her company ever since. A short time ago Mrs. Johnson sold two houses and announced to friends that she was about to leave the State.

At the same time it was learned that Dr. Robbins was in Reno, Nev., supposedly for the purpose of securing a divorce. Mrs. Robbins is an attractive woman, about thirty years old. Her husband is about two years older. The couple separated last Spring, and since then Mrs. Robbins has been living with relatives.

"FARE DE LUXE" ON HOLBROOK CARS REDUCED

The Norfolk & Bristol Street Railway Company has reduced its "fare de luxe," following the story in last Sunday's AMERICAN, of patrons paying as high as forty cents for a half-mile ride on the Holbrook cars. The cut benefits people of Holbrook, Randolph and North Stoughton. The fare on the company's late cars, which meets the last train from Boston at Holbrook depot, was ten cents to Mann's Corner, a two and one-half mile ride.

But those wishing to ride on as far as North Stoughton turnout, a half-mile further, were obliged to pay the astonishing extra fare of forty cents. That was at the rate of forty cents a half-mile or twenty cents a mile. This was admitted by patrons to be the most "de luxe" trolleying on record.

Petitions complained to the AMERICAN, Lieutenant Caleb West of the Coast Artillery Corps brought the case before the Railroad Commission.

But, before that body acted, the AMERICAN story was printed and the trolley company "came down," like Davy Crockett's famous 'coon.

Now the fare is ten cents from Holbrook depot to Mann's corner, as before, but the additional fare to North Stoughton turnout, which was forty cents, has been slashed to fifteen cents. This makes the total run from the depot to turnout twenty-five cents, where it used to be fifty cents.

R. R. GOUGING COMPLAINT BY A COMMUTER

Attorney General Swift, who has personally filed three bills at the State House to stop what he calls "railroad gouging" in Massachusetts, today received a letter from Fred L. Turner of No. 70 Kilby street, in which the latter accuses the Boston & Maine Railroad of "taking undue advantage of its patrons."

Mr. Turner, whose home is in Danvers and who says he has been a commuter on the Boston & Maine for twenty-one years, gives facts which he says will back up the Attorney General's charge of "gouging" on the part of railroads in the State.

Mr. Turner declares in his letter that he lost his season ticket, but did not believe he should be compelled to pay a double fare. Under the Boston & Maine's rule, no money is refunded for lost season tickets.

Mr. Turner says he wrote to General Passenger Agent Burt, of the Boston & Maine and that letter gone to Mr. Burt's office. He says he was told by the chief clerk in Mr. Burt's office that there was no refund. The chief clerk, Turner could not refund the money for his lost season ticket. Mr. Turner says he was informed that the railroad could refund the money, but that it would cost them something to find the facts in the case.

"I told the chief clerk that in my business life, operating on the twenty-two years' standing would be accorded every courtesy in a matter of this kind," writes Mr. Turner to the Attorney General. "I asked him if they didn't think it was due me that they investigate. He refused brusquely. I told him to remember that I understand that you refuse to consider the lack of politics in America, but left the matter more unsatisfactory than ever."

Mr. Turner says the Boston & Maine maintains a system to keep track of season tickets and argues that this system should permit the railroad to refund money for lost tickets.

Mr. Burt denies that such a checking system is in existence.

"As to the Boston & Maine discontinuance of the practice of selling tickets to students unless the child attends a public school," Mr. Turner writes, "there is no such case. I am sending my two daughters to school in Lynn. Prior to January 1 their transportation was $3.10 for a month's season ticket. Now I have to pay $10.50. I cannot see the justice in this."

Mr. Mellen advertises in the papers that the motto of the New Haven is 'Cooperation with the vital interests of New England.' I find it hard to harmonize this with what I have stated to you."

In a letter to General Passenger Agent Burt, Mr. Turner says his counsel had advised him that it is not necessary for him to pay double fare.

HEARST INVOKED IN COMMONS BY TORY MEMBER

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The name of William Randolph Hearst was mentioned during the seemingly interminable debates that are now going on in the House of Commons on the Irish home rule question.

Earl Winterton, the Unionist member for Horsham, was moving an amendment seeking to restrict any Irish Parliament from sending representatives to any foreign nation and said:

The Irish Parliament might pass a resolution to send an envoy to Washington without the concurrence of the imperial executive.

If such a case did arise the good feeling which has been increasing between this country and the United States might be affected in view of the power of the Irish vote and the homogenities of the Irish as a unit in American politics. It is also recognized that this power is increasing yearly.

The Irish-American party is responsible for the policy of the Nationalists in the Commons and it is a well-known fact that the Irish-American party is largely responsible for the financial stability of the Irish parliamentary party.

It is also well known that those who "pay the piper call the tune," and I should like to hear the views on this subject of Patrick Ford, the two Sullivans and of William Randolph Hearst, whose names are household words in Irish-American circles.

Lord Winterton then passed to other subjects.

Maid Sues Back Bay Widow for Burns from Disinfectant

Miss Elizabeth E. Hood, a maid and seamstress, entered a $5,000 damage suit in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court today against Mrs. Anna L. P. Williams, a Back Bay widow, for injuries which, the said allegea, were caused to her face and eyes by acid that Mrs. Williams carelessly left in the bathroom as a disinfectant.

In her bill of complaint the maid says that on June 17, last, Mrs. Williams "carelessly, negligently and unskillfully used carbolic acid or some other poisonous irritant by sprinkling it about the bathroom for disinfecting purposes. Miss Hood further declares that, when she turned on faucet water in the bathroom bowl, and on the bowl and slab was thrown up in her face and eyes, burning them seriously.

The suit as entered by Miss Hood's counsel, George W. Reed. Albert L. Lincoln is attorney for Mrs. Williams.

2 FIREMEN HURT BY FALLING GLASS AT EARLY BLAZE

Two firemen were injured at a fire which early today caused $1,000 damage to the firemen's brick building at Nos. 1, 3 and 5 India square—and for which Box No. 710 was rounded for the 2:01 time.

The injured are Captain Wenam Riley of Engine 4 and Dennis Conlon of Ladder 1. Conlon was cut on the head by glass as he was breaking his way into the third floor from a ladder. Captain Riley was cut on the wrist by falling glass.

FLOOD RECEDES AT PITTSBURGH; NO LIVES LOST

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—The crisis in the flood was reached today and the Ohio River began receding slowly. All danger from further damage has passed, Forecaster Punnewill declared this stage at Wheeling would be forty-eight feet.

The damage caused by the flood will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Part no doubt were lost in unreported remarkable. Million light bricks and the entire North Side and south of the Lawrenceville and the South and West sides were flooded, and hundreds of people were fled to upper floors were removed to boats.

FIREMEN NOT TO STRIKE BECAUSE DEMANDS FAILED

No strike is feared by officials of the three railroads entering Boston because of the rejection at New York of the firemen's demand that the wage question be arbitrated under the Erdman law.

The firemen, it is said here, are in such a position that they will be compelled to waive all their demands before a board of arbitration.

Less than 2,500 out of the 24,000 men affected are employed by the railroads entering this city.

RUSH DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT TO MONTREAL HOSPITAL

MONTREAL, Jan. 9.—No attempt was made today at the Royal Victoria Hospital to conceal the fact that the Duchess of Connaught, who was brought here from Ottawa last night, was in a serious condition as the result of an attack of peritonitis. Physicians, however, said the trip to this city had not greatly fatigued her, and she passed a comfortable night.

Lighthouse Keeper Sails Six Miles Amid Floating Ice to Secure a Bottle of Father John's Medicine

David W. Collison, assistant keeper of a Maryland lighthouse, tells the risks and dangers he experienced in order to secure a supply of Father John's Medicine, as follows:

"I am as "Seven Foot Knoll" lighthouse, Patuxck river, Md. I was on the verge of grip. I had previously used Father John's Medicine with good success and needed a supply to give me strength to ward off the attack.

Owing to the inclement weather, I could not leave the station to go to Baltimore to renew my supply of Father John's Medicine, so I started amid the risks and dangers of drifting ice, and sailed six miles to Sparrows Point, the nearest place where I could secure another bottle of Father John's Medicine. I have every confidence in the medicine and so was willing to undertake the great risk involved."

(Signed) David W. Collison.

GEORGE F. BAKER TELLS MONEY TRUST PROBERS BIG FINANCE SECRETS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A resolution declaring George G. Henry, a New York stock broker, in contempt for refusing to answer questions of the "Money Trust" committee, was unanimously adopted by the House this afternoon. A citation was issued at once, bringing Henry's case before United States District Attorney Wilson in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—George F. Baker of New York, characterized by Samuel Untermyer as the "Boss of Wall Street," and generally recognized as second only to J. P. Morgan in American finance, was the star witness before the Pujo "money trust" investigating committee today. He described the operations of the First National Bank and the Chase National Bank, both of which he controls. Mr. Baker is seventy-two years old.

Questioned by Attorney Untermyer as to his occupation, Mr. Baker said:

"I am supposed to be a banker, am chairman of the board of directors of the First National Bank of New York, chairman of the executive committee and once was its president."

Became Bank President in 1874.

He was elected to the presidency of the bank in 1874, he stated.

"What was the capital of the bank when you became president?" asked Untermyer.

"It was $500,000."

"And what was the amount of the surplus and undivided profits in 1874?"

"It amounted to $624,128."

"That was during the panic times, was it not?"

"Yes."

"And your bank increased its surplus and capital during the times of panic?"

"I should not think that would be the cause."

Untermyer then read from a report showing that the First National Bank had a capital of $350,000 and a surplus of $250,000 in 1873. Baker admitted those figures to be correct. Untermyer then resumed the quiz:

Q.—When was the capital of your bank increased? A.—In 1901 it was increased from $500,000 to $10,000,000.

Q.—Was this brought about by the dividends of the bank? A.—Yes. The profits of that year were $3,415,000.

Q.—Will you give the percentage of dividends since the capital of the bank was increased? A.—In 1902 it was 20 per cent., in 1903 and in 1904 it was 20 per cent.; in 1905 it was 21½ per cent. In 1906 it was 25 per cent., in 1907 it was 32 per cent., in 1908 it was 132 per cent., in 1909 it was 28 per cent., in 1910 it was 28 per cent. In 1911 it was 38 per cent., and in our showing so far for 1912 is 33 per cent.

Q.—In 1909, when you declared an extra 100 per cent. dividend, the Equity Company of New York was formed? A.—That is correct.

Untermyer then called for the production of the articles of incorporation for the First Security Company, the charter aforesaid to the First National Bank relative to the incorporation and all other papers relating to the transaction.

Baker explained that in the organization of the First Security Company only the large stockholders of the First National Bank were called in to establish control. Prior to this organization he began purchasing stock in the Chase National Bank.

Bought Chase Bank Himself.

Baker said he began buying about ten years ago and obtained control about five years ago. He did not remember how he had purchased the stock, save that it was in large blocks.

Q.—Does the First National Bank, directly or indirectly, hold Chase stock or other bank? A.—Yes. I bought the Chase Bank stock myself. It was for the benefit of the stockholders of the bank.

Untermyer then demanded that Baker produce a list showing the bank holdings of First Security Company.

"That is our personal business," protested Baker, "and we would prefer not to have this list made public. The only stock in which interest this committee in its inquiry is that of the Chase National Bank, and while I do not object to showing you this list personally, I must protest against making public our private affairs."

Untermyer examined the list, and then stated that there were a number of bank holdings which he desired to make public. Baker offered no further objection, and the list was read in part. It showed the First Security Company to hold 4,500 shares of stock of the Minneapolis First National Bank; 200 shares of the stock of Minneapolis Trust Company; 200 shares of the Astor Trust Company; 2,500 shares of the Bankers' Trust Company; 450 shares of the Brooklyn Trust Company; 28,023 shares (representing control) of the Chase National Bank; 5,400 shares of the National Bank of Commerce; 928 shares of the Liberty National Bank and 1,000 shares of the New York Trust Company.

Heeded Government Suggestions.

The stock of the Chase National Bank, Baker said, was purchased at less than one-half of its present quotation. During the time the stock was being acquired the capital of the bank was increased five times to a total of $5,000,000.

"The First Security Company was organized," continued Baker, "because of the complaint of the Treasury Department against banks carrying railroad stock. We felt that the security company would meet this objection. We have been in business for fifty years, and we have never yet received a complaint from the department which has not been complied with."

Evasion of the Laws?

Q.—Do you not know that the Attorney-General has protested against the organization of the First Security Company? A.—I only read it in the papers.

Q.—Have you not employed counsel to take up this matter?

Baker replied he was not able to say.

Q.—Your purpose in organizing the First Security Company was to do things which the bank could not lawfully do? A.—I would say, rather, that it was what the bank was not authorized to do. The First National Bank was organized to deal in bonds, which it has done since the Civil War.

Q.—When did you receive the complaint against stock buying? A.—About ten years ago.

Q.—How long afterward did you continue to buy stock? A.—For several years. We were finally told that we must not do it, and then the First Security Company was organized.

Q.—Is not the First Security Company a mere evasion of the banking act? A.—I would not regard it so.

Q.—It is under the same management, is it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—It cannot buy or sell without the aid of the bank? A.—That is correct.

Q.—And the bank lends the Security Company money? A.—That is true.

Why Assets Are Not Stated.

Q.—Can you tell us, Mr. Baker, why national banks should not state their assets? A.—Business would come to a standstill if this were done. There are some bonds, perhaps, that banks would not want exposed.

Q.—It seems to me that would be a good reason for knowing.

"If the depositor is not satisfied with the way the bank is run he should draw out his deposit and go somewhere else," retorted Baker. "The people do not want facts in some business. Credit is the fundamental part of banking, and confidence must go with it."

Untermyer persistently question Baker as to the "voting trust," by which he meant the Bankers' Trust Company of New York.

Q.—Isn't it unusual for a financial institution to be under a voting trust? A.—I do not so consider it.

Q.—What interest have you in the Bankers' Trust Company? A.—A small interest, about 1,000 shares.

Q.—And they are worth between $700 and $800 a share? Do you call that small?

Baker laughed and made no reply.

MISS HARRIS NOW INSURANCE AGENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Miss Elizabeth Harris, daughter of Congressman Harris, who resigned a $1,500 job as her father's secretary a short time ago to go into business, has sent cards to her acquaintances asking for opportunities to establish the desirability of theft and residence burglar insurance.

STATE HOUSE NOTES

Senator Frederick H. Hilton of Framingham today filed a resolve at the State House in favor of the creation of an international commission on the high cost of living. Other bills filed today are:

By James A. Watson for retirement of disabled policemen of Boston and of members of the force of not less than fifteen years' service.

By Representative John P. Buckley of Brockton, that the polls be kept open in cities until 8 o'clock in the evening for primaries and elections.

By the same petitioner, that aged and infirm voters be carried to and from the polls at public expense.

By John Herbert and others, for the establishment of the commission form of government in Somerville.

By Representative Michael S. Keenan of Lynn, to provide that Lynn shall abandon its commission form of government and return to a Mayor and eleven Aldermen.

By Representative Michael Brophy of Boston, that the hours for opening and closing the polls for State primaries and elections be made uniform in all cities and towns.

By the same petitioner, that the hours of opening and closing the polls in all places which comprise parts of Suffolk election districts be made the same as those for the city of Boston.

The prevention of overcrowding of street railway cars by the passage of a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Michael H. Cotter of Lynn. The bill provides that street railway companies shall not carry in any car a number of passengers 10 per cent. greater than the seating capacity, excepting at such times as the Railroad Commission may authorize the carrying of a greater number.

The Boston & Albany Railroad will be required to issue five-trip tickets for passage between the South Station and any other points on its lines within the limits of the city, at an exceeding five cents per trip, under a bill filed at the State House today by William H. Thayer.

U. P. RAILROAD PLAN NEARLY COMPLETED

The AMERICAN is informed authoritatively that announcement of the Union Pacific's plan for dealing with its Southern Pacific stock will be made in a few days. No intimation is given, however, as to the nature of the proposed plan.

Wall Street expects either a purchasing syndicate or distribution to both Union Pacific and Southern Pacific stockholders.

The following dispatch was received from Washington:

Washington, Jan. 8.—Negotiations to agree upon the terms of a decree dissolving the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific Railroad merger in accordance with the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States were resumed here today by Attorney-General Wickersham and representatives of the Union Pacific.

The government, it is generally believed here, in view of the Supreme Court's ruling on Monday, will not now be satisfied with the plan formerly proposed by Attorney General Wickersham, by which the Union Pacific's holdings of Southern Pacific stock would be distributed or sold pro rata to the stockholders of both the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific roads, exclusive of the defendants in the suit.

With the court's ruling before them, Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific board; Frank A. Vanderlip and Mortimer L. Schiff studied the situation with the Attorney-General. The railroad representatives left Washington tonight, with a full conception of the Attorney-General's views, to discuss the problem with other officers of the company.

Mr. Wickersham holds that the decision of the Supreme Court sustained the propositions of his brief. This brief of the Attorney-General and the reference of the case to the Supreme Court were due to the fact that Jacob H. Schiff and other financiers had endeavored to suggest plans to which neither the President nor the Department of Justice would agree. As the Attorney-General is convinced that the Supreme Court has sustained him, he has taken the ground that no plan can be submitted to the District Court in Utah which he does not approve.

SHOE TRAVELERS URGE ANTI TIPPING BAY STATE LAW

A Massachusetts law forbidding tipping was urged by delegates to the National Shoe Travelers' Association annual convention, held in the United States Hotel. Anti-tipping laws throughout the country were advocated, but direct action was urged in Massachusetts as a first stepping stone to success in other States. The motion urging the convention to take this first action toward securing legislation came in the report of the delegation of the Rochester Shoe Travelers' Association.

The convention, which was opened by a welcoming address by Mayor Fitzgerald, represented shoe salesmen from all over the country.

John E. O'Brien of Boston was elected president and Fred W. Stanton of Boston secretary.

WIFE WENT AWAY TO REST FROM CARE OF KEEPING HOUSE

"I went away to rest up from the cares of the house," says Mrs. Catherine Jordan, who has returned home after having been missing since Monday. Mrs. Jordan went out to make some purchases at a nearby store and failed to come back. Mr. Jordan was left with the care of their eighteen-months-old infant. The groceries ordered by the wife were sent home, but Mrs. Jordan failed to appear and Mr. Jordan started out on an anxious search.

HAINES CLAIMS A 'STACKUP' ON MERGER REPORT

Representative Benjamin F. Haines of Medford, one of the Republican leaders of the lower branch of the Legislature, today made the charge that the special committee which investigated the Western trolley situation and has just reported in favor of giving the New Haven control of all the street railway lines in Western Massachusetts, in direct violation of a long-established policy of the State, was "stacked" in favor of a trolley merger.

"The committee was stacked in favor of a merger from the very beginning," declared Representative Haines to an AMERICAN reporter at the State House today. "Every man on the committee voted for a merger last year. Their attitude was such that their minds must have been made up on the matter before they began taking evidence or investigating the subject. The report, therefore, should have no weight whatever with the present Legislature."

The special legislative committee which investigated the New Haven trolley situation was appointed by President Levi H. Greenwood of the Senate and Speaker Cushing of the House of Representatives. The committee was made up of three senators and four representatives.

Meaney Only Dissenter.

Representative John F. Meaney of Blackstone was the only dissenter. He filed a minority report attacking the proposition of permitting the consolidation of influence in the trolley field, declaring that it would make possible an absolute monopoly of transportation facilities in the Commonwealth. Representative Meaney last year voted for the trolley merger.

The seven members of the special committee are: Senators Calvin Coolidge of Northampton, chairman; Charles V. Blanchard of Somerville, John Hunt of Worcester; Representatives Leonard F. Hardy of Dedham, Charles L. Gary of Boston, H. Bert Knowles of Gloucester and John F. Meaney of Blackstone.

Governor Foss, Chairman Macleod of the Railroad Commission and the Public Franchise League, as well as a number of other prominent commercial and public spirited bodies and citizens have condemned the merger proposition as a dangerous departure from a well-established policy of the State to keep railroad lines and street railway lines separated.

Great Need of Trolleys.

The committee, in its report, states that there is great need of additional trolleys in the western part of the State, expresses the opinion that private capital cannot be secured to build these trolleys, and that the only chance to get them is for the city willing to make the necessary expenditures at this time. It therefore recommends that the power be given the authority to control the securities of the western Massachusetts street railways.

Commenting on this particular point of the committee's report, Representative Haines today said: "The committee seems to be willing to sell out the interests of the entire Commonwealth in order to satisfy the desires of a small section thereof."

COLD AND WIND PREVENT FLYER'S START WITH MAIL

It was too cold and windy for Harry K. Jones, aviator, to start from Franklin Park on his way to New York with mail today. The young Rhode Island birdman was on hand at the park with his biplane, but the wind was blowing forty miles an hour and he decided it would be impossible to start through the icy air until the breeze had died down to fifteen miles an hour. If the wind abates before midafternoon the start will be made.

Husband Flies In A Rage—Drink!

But Cobleskill Woman Now Knows How To Make Him Quit Liquor

Where there's a will there's a way. Usually the woman who wants a husband who drinks just meekly submits and hopes. It's no longer necessary to stolidly by and take his abuse—as this Cobleskill woman found out. She hoped, prayed and did what any woman can do—gave it to him secretly. Result: what she writes "He now not seem to drink nearly as much and is not under the influence of it half as much. His nerves and disposition are much better—also his appetite."

Every day brings new testimony, and the gratitude of rescued men and happy women knows no bounds.

Mayor Asks Federal Probe of Oil Prices

Roused by the fact that the Standard Oil Company has advanced the price of gasoline and kerosene, Mayor Fitzgerald has written Congressman Curley asking him to take the matter up with Attorney-General Wickersham for the purpose of securing advice as to remedial legislation. The Mayor's letter reads:

I desire to call your attention to the tremendous increase in the price of oil and by-products during the past few months, thereby affecting the cost of living of every human being in the world. It affects the poor man because of the increased price of kerosene, as well as the rich man who uses gasoline for his motor car and the manufacturer who uses oil in various lines of business.

It is the general belief that this tremendous increase is not occasioned by any scarcity of product or any necessity on the part of those who control the stock to enable them to pay reasonable dividends. The Standard Oil Company is the dominant factor in the situation and the value of its securities has increased hundreds of millions of dollars within a comparatively few months.

It seems to me that some legislation should be enacted to correct an evil of this kind. Will you not see the Attorney-General and get his advice upon the situation?

NO CASE READY, JUDGE REBUKES THE LAWYERS

SALEM, Jan. 9.—Judge Hitchcock in the Essex Superior Court here today, after having the entire list of thirty cases on the calendar called and finding that not a single one was ready for trial, defaulted two of them and administered a rebuke to lawyers in the courtroom. Judge Hitchcock told the attorneys they would have to be ready hereafter when their cases are called.

"There have been numerous complaints of congested dockets, in Essex County," declared the judge from the bench. "This court is disposed to relieve this condition. But to do this counsel must co-operate."

PHYSICIANS PRAISE CONSUMPTION REMEDY

Most Eminent Throughout Europe Indorse Preparation Brought to New York.

During the last year there has been introduced into the United States a remedy for Consumption which comes to us with a most remarkable list of indorsements from the leading specialists of Europe.

It has been used for several years on the other side, and one after case has yielded to it.

This preparation is called Sirolin, and, judging from the condition of some of the patients whom it has saved, no consumptive need fear that he is too far gone to be benefited by it. It is a creosote, but it is free from the nausea of the appetite and assisting digestion. It checks the racking cough and lessens the gathering of mucus on the lungs in a remarkable way.

If you or any of your friends are suffering from any throat or lung ailment do not fail to send for full information about Sirolin to the Sirolin Co., 278 West Broadway, New York City. Rhea-James Drug Stores and all leading druggists are distributing Sirolin with remarkable success. Advertisement.

GIRL FINDS HOME IN SUBURBS SOLVES LIVING ON $8 WEEKLY WAGE

The announcement by the Commissioners of Social Service of the Interchurch Federation of Philadelphia that no self-respecting girl or woman can live in Philadelphia for less than $8 a week has been sent broadcast over the country as a warning to women and girls who contemplate looking for work in that city.

This $8 per week is divided as follows:

Room and two meals a day	$5.00
Luncheons	1.20
Clothing and incidentals	1.80
Total per week	$8.00

The commission in its statement declares that "so many dangers beset the self-supporting woman who has an inadequate wage or is out of employment for any length of time that we feel justified in issuing this caution and warning."

Rise-now Marjory Daw,
Jenny shall have a new master,
She shall receive but a penny a day,
Because she can't work any faster.
(Author Queen Rhymes.)

Wasn't that the way the old rhyme ran? Anyhow, the question of how much "Jenny" shall get, and how much "Jenny" can live on, remains the same problem.

"Jenny's" penny, according to Philadelphia people, should not be less than $8 a week, if she is to get her sole support from what she earns. The AMERICAN has invited working girls and women to write their own experiences of how much—or how little—they can live on.

Letters are coming in daily. The subject appealed, evidently, to the Boston working girl. The letters are from real life, with the homely details. They tell of struggle, of triumph and of failure.

Writers of these letters should sign their real name and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

For the five best letters, giving the most information as to how $8 a week may be wisely spent by working women and girls, with every detail of information about food, dress and wages, the AMERICAN will give $10 each.

For ten letters considered to give the next best information on these points, the AMERICAN will pay the writers $5 each.

The letters must be addressed:

The AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

By this means the newspaper hopes to get the experiences of girls or women in factories, shops, stores, mills and so on, and in boarding or lodging houses either alone or with companions. All should write frankly of their experiences and give others the benefit of them.

Here are some of the letters received:

Got Along Comfortably.

Editor AMERICAN:

Yes, a girl can live on $8 a week and lead an honest life. I only received $8 a week and I got along very nicely indeed. Here is how I managed:

Room, breakfast and supper	$4.00
Dinners	1.50
Washing	1.00
Car fares	.50
Pocket money	1.00
Totals	$8.00

If I wanted a suit I would try and put away from 50 to 75 cents a week until I had the amount saved up.

Of course, if a girl is handy with the needle she can get on very well and always dress neat at a very small expense.

Women Need $10 a Week.

Editor AMERICAN:

I am a constant reader of the daily and Sunday AMERICAN, and have been reading the letters appearing each day on: "Can a self-respecting woman live on less than $8 per week?" I don't agree with the writer who says $8 is sufficient for the girls and women of New England.

Can it be called living for a woman to really eat and sleep in one room? That is merely existing.

Why should a woman be obliged to come home after getting her employer an honest and faithful day's work and do her laundry work after dark?

Everyone cannot live in the Y. W. C. A. or in private families. Many must go to lodging houses and a heated room cannot be procured less than $2.50 per week. A room without heat cannot be called comfortable in the Winter.

My weekly expenses are:

Room	$2.50
Board	4.00
Laundry	.75
Carfare, insurance and church	1.00
Total	$8.25

The least a woman can live on in my opinion is $10 per week and keep healthy.

Calls Suburbs Place to Live.

Editor AMERICAN:

You ask the question: Can a working girl live on $8 a week? Yes, I do, and I live well. But I live in the suburbs and with a private family.

Here are my expenses:

I board and room for $5 per week, including lunches and plain washing. I always carry my lunch, having meat, cake or pie or preserves if I don't care for meat). As for my ironing, I pay 25 cents for the use of the gas stove. On this store I cook from all clothes for the week.

My car fare is 10 cents per week. This makes a total of $5.85.

I have $2.15 for my clothes and amusements.

Girls! Come to the suburbs even if you have to get up a little early. Come and live as I do.

Says Girl Needs $8 Anyway.

Editor AMERICAN:

I think it a splendid idea of your up-to-date paper to invite the women and girls that are working in Boston to tell their experiences on this vital question. If a girl gets $8 per week she can get along, but it is very hard work indeed. It can be done. If a girl is quick with her needle she can, by making her own undergarments, skirt waists, etc.

By the use of a hot flatiron and damp cloth she can renovate the trimming of her hat and feather, copying from the millinery in windows. She can also keep her hosiery and gloves well mended. Remember the old saying, "A stitch in time saves nine."

If a garment is on the decline one evening's mending will make it last quite a while longer.

Every week I launch and press my every-day suit, and it always looks fresh and new. A 10-cent tin of shoe polish keeps my shoes and boots bright and new for a long time. Food, rent and carfares require the most cash, and anyone who gets less than $8 starves herself (morally and physically).

Mrs. Belmont's letter is good, but not for this "dark age." Every girl cannot live at the Y. W. C. A. Board has gone up there as well as at the Franklin House. One cannot get a room and board there now for $5. I send an itemized list of the necessities which a girl has to have:

Room	$2.00
Board	4.50
Carfare	.20
Church	.10
Total	$7.30

If she lives where she cannot do her own washing, that is another item. If she belongs to a lodge for insurance benefits in sickness or death that is still another 5 cts.

So if anyone wishes a person thinks a girl can get along on less than $8 per, let that party call on me and have a heart-to-heart talk.

One Girl's Experience.

Editor AMERICAN:

I am a poor girl. I have been working for $6 a week. I pay $3 for my board, $1.50 for my room. I had to hang my clothes on the wall. The room had no closet. I paid 15 cents a week for the laundry of a shirt waist. The rest of my clothes I washed. I hung the clothes around my room at night to dry. I never ironed them. I have $1.35 left, and I worked for $2.50 a week and had one meal a day. I bought some cookies for my supper and breakfast. I know what it is to live on small pay.

Hundreds Live on $8.

Editor AMERICAN:

Can Boston women live on less than eight dollars weekly? Yes, indeed it is possible. In fact hundreds, nay thousands of Boston girls are proving it can be done. A girl can find room, two meals daily and washing, for $4 weekly with a private family. Lunches cost 90 cents, car fares 60 cents and insurance 25 cents weekly. This is a total of $5.75. Therefore, a Boston girl could live on $7 weekly easy.

The average working girl does not spend more than $60 yearly for clothes. The above allows $64 yearly for clothing and incidentals.

Many little know of the bargains to be had in women's apparel. I will give you an idea. I have an extra fine chiffon broadcloth suit which only cost at a reduction sale $7.37, a hat to match, bought at same place at $2.37, shoes $2, waist $2, silk underskirt to match $1.65, velvet bag to match $1; total $16.39. Dressed with the above I consider myself presentable to venture forth even at the Copley-Plaza.

My weekly income is $14 weekly. I do not spend over $50 yearly for clothes. Then too if a girl shares her room the expense is 50 to 75 cents less weekly.

Trusting this will give you an idea of a girl's expenses, I remain,

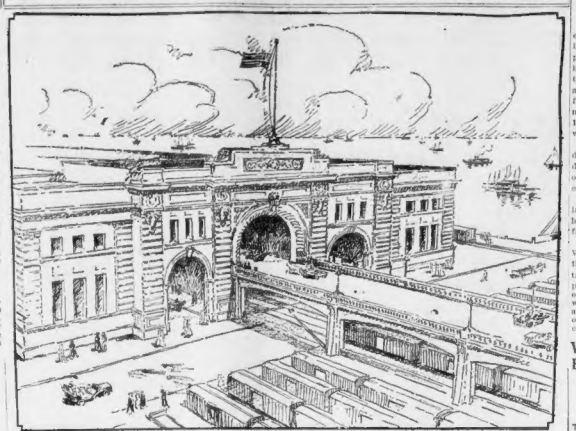
APPROVE HEADHOUSE PLANS FOR BIG NEW COMMONWEALTH PIER



NORTHERN AVE FRONT WITH ELEVATED ROADWAY FROM SUMMER ST.

Northern avenue front of of headhouse for Commonwealth pier, designed by F. H. Keyes.

Directors O. K. Design Which Architects Helped to Prepare.

The plans for the headhouse of the Commonwealth Piers, designed by F. H. Keyes, were adopted by the directors of Port of Boston today. These plans were approved by the public improvement committee of the Boston Society of Architects.

The headhouse will be two stories high, with provisions on the second story for offices, superintendent's quarters and the like.

Four railroad tracks will run into the ground floor of the pier. These will be sunk so that the floors of the cars will be on the level with the floor of the pier. There will also be a roadways for wagons.

One of the features of the pier will be the elevated roadway which will run from Summer street to the headhouse so that carriages and automobiles can go right into the second floor of the pier. The elevated railway will leave Summer street at a point nearly opposite the corner of L street.

The plans for this feature of the pier and for the large grain elevator which the Port Directors propose to build have not yet reached a definite stage.

The Hamburg-American Line will occupy one-half the pier and the other half will be open to the owners of any other vessels for docking. In return for the $2,000,000 or more that the State is spending on this pier, a wharfage charge will be made of 10 cents for every ton of freight handled. This will be paid by the railroads. An additional charge of six cents will be made for every passenger who embarks or disembarks at the pier. This will be paid by the Hamburg-American Line or any other line using the pier.

The Port Directors do not require that all the work be done by May 1. Such a thing would be impossible, but a good portion must be completed so that the German line can have ample facilities. If the contract is not fulfilled the contractor will be fined $1,000 for each day's delay. He will be given a bonus of $1,000 for each day that he finishes ahead of time.

Efficiency Keynote in the New Offices of Wood, Putnam, Wood

How the much-discussed factor of efficiency, so much a consideration now in mill and factory operation, can be applied to offices and even to office fixtures, is aptly illustated in the new location of the Wood, Putnam & Wood Company, the advertising agency, which has just removed from No. 161 Devonshire street to the ninth floor of the Minot building at No. 111 Devonshire street. The old location was outgrown.

The company has not only added service departments, but has offices equipped and designed to enable all departments of the organization to work together with greatest efficiency and convenience.

This feature alone will appeal particularly to business men interested in seeing how skilful arrangement of an office can facilitate the product thereof.

Allen H. Wood, president, and Marion V. Putnam, treasurer, of the agency, believe that greatest efficiency can be obtained only by having individuals and departments placed in the proper relation to others with whom they work. This idea was carried out carefully in the new offices and the advantages were immediately obvious, both to the agency and its clientele.

UNION OF ELEVATOR MEN URGES LICENSE TO PROTECT PUBLIC

Following the accidental death of Miss Mary L. Wolter of Jamaica Plain in an elevator accident at the Oliver Building, Boston Elevator Operators' Union has completed the draft of a bill for presentation to the Legislature calling for the compulsory licensing of all elevator operators as a measure of public safety.

This union is chartered direct by the A. F. of L., and is affiliated with the powerful Boston Central Labor Union. Its 450 members are unanimously in favor of a State license for all elevator operators.

ASK SUBSIDY FOR WIDOWS AND CHILDREN

The special commission created by the last Legislature to study the question of assisting widowed mothers having minor children dependant upon them for support, and the advisability of providing for the maintenance of such children in their homes, today submitted two reports to the Legislature.

The majority report, signed by Chairman Robert B. Forester and Clara Cahill Park, secretary, recommends the establishment of a subsidy plan for the aid of widows and children.

The minority report, signed by David F. Tilley of Boston, declares that no new legislation is needed, but that a liberal interpretation of existing laws for the care of the poor would provide adequately for all classes.

The majority report states:

"Because of the many different circumstances of widows' families, the considerable period of time for which aid should be planned and the difficulty of applying an adequate standard of subsidy, the commission believes that all applications for subsidy should be judged by a single body of persons with expert assistants. The commission recommends that a small unpaid body of persons be appointed to act in relation to the State Board of Charity.

"Such a board would award a subsidy only after detailed information had been secured and found to warrant a subsidy. Recipients of the subsidy would be visited from time to time and if conditions were found to indicate that the subsidy was not being employed to the children's benefit it would be withdrawn. The expense of the subsidy should chiefly be borne locally, the rate contributing a proportion.

HELP RECEIVED WHEN HOPE WAS GIVEN UP

The Tona Vita experts publish statements of people who have gained benefit from the new tonic, Tona Vita, so that others can reap the harvest of their experience.

Peter Sanchez, 29 Hanson street, Boston, makes the following statement, after taking a bottle of this tonic:

"I had been ailing for some years. I was not so sick that I had to keep to my bed, but I was ill enough to feel run down all the time. I tried all kinds of remedies without any success. For a long time I realized that the only hope I had to enjoy life was to regain my health. But since neither the doctors nor the medicines afforded me any relief, I just gave up hoping.

"A little while ago I read about this new tonic, Tona Vita, and I purchased some of it. The effect was remarkable. After the first few doses I began to feel better and continued to improve each day. Now I can sleep well and can enjoy what I eat. In fact, I can for the first time in many years say that my food agrees with me."

"Owing to the strenuous rush of life nowadays, over 75 per cent. of the population of Boston are afflicted with nervous debility," said one of the Tona Vita experts.

"They have uneasy sleep, little ambition and become easily exhausted. They suffer with timidity, have no initiative, are droopy and listless and have not enough self-reliance. Their nerves are impoverished to an extent that makes them imagine they are suffering from various disorders of a nervous debility, and it is to conquer this condition that Tona Vita, the great national tonic, has been put on the market.

"Tona Vita is now on sale at all druggists in Boston, and any worn out, nervous man or woman who takes this tonic for one week will certainly admit it is a wonderful preparation."

FEEL SHAKY, BILIOUS, HEADACHY, OR CONSTIPATED? TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels, or a sick stomach. Poisonous, constipated matter, gases and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bile and constipation poison move on and out of the bowels. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies whose sensitive organisms are especially prone to sick headaches need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Children need Cascarets, too—they love them because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

LADY ABDY WED TO ARTIST; HAD BOSTON WOOER

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Lady Florence Abdy, enriched by two aged husbands who died, and reported to be the richest woman in England, has just married a third time. Her new husband is Maurice Grant, an English artist. She is forty. He is twenty-seven.

Since the death of her second husband, Sir William Abdy, eighteen months ago, Lady Abdy has figured considerably in the newspapers. Among other suitors for the hand of Lady Florence, within the past year, was Leola Waters of Boston. Mr. Waters ceased his attentions, it was said, when it became known that when she married her title died.

Lady Florence, or rather, Mrs. Grant, did not seem to take her third marriage as seriously as did her tall, thin, grave husband. Once during the ceremony she turned to the newspaper men and smiled. When the ceremony was over the couple went to Hotel Ritz, enjoyed a wedding breakfast and then started for Devonshire in an automobile.

Lady Abdy met Grant, her third husband, three weeks ago in Paris.

WHAT IS THE USE OF CATCHING COLD?

None Whatever, Says a Prominent Physician.

S. B. Hartman, M. D., of Columbus, Ohio, sends out the following pungent and pointed advice to the reading public:

You catch cold easily. You have several colds every winter. You do not exactly have catarrh, and yet there is more or less stoppage in the nose. You have got so you expect to have a cold every month or so.

Your trouble is lack of resistance. You lack vital powers to resist the climatic conditions. With anything that would raise the nervous tone or invigorate the nutritive system you could go right through the winter without catching cold. It is a foolish waste of energy and a reckless risk of your life to continue in this way.

I have a way to avoid all this, if you will take my advice. First, you should take a cold water sponge bath every morning. It should be taken very rapidly, with a wet towel, and can be taken anywhere, in a hotel or a small bedroom. A quart of water is all that is necessary. Rub yourself until you are thoroughly warm and dry.

Now, in addition to this you should take a tablespoonful of Peruna before each meal, and if you are out late at night and exposed somewhat to cold, crowds and stuffy rooms, take a tablespoonful before going to bed also.

If you will follow these simple, plain directions you won't catch cold again. Try it. Write me about it. It will work, and be worth a fortune to you. For men or women, old or young, strong or weak, this advice is applicable and there are no failures when it is properly followed.

A. F. L. STARTS NATIONAL WAR ON CHILD LABOR

Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, declares that organization will take an active part in the "child labor" war which has begun all over this country.

The declaration of Mr. Morrison is an indorsement of the fight begun by the AMERICAN against child labor and the unhealthy conditions of homes and factories where these little ones have been found at work in this State. The AMERICAN has exposed the conditions of child labor in Massachusetts and has shown that children at the age of three years have been found working at home under unhealthy conditions and with long hours.

Mr. Morrison, speaking of child labor, said:

The men and women who compose our trade unions have a double interest in this matter. It is generally their children who fill the army of little workers and it is their wages that suffer from the competition of the underpaid children. The American Federation of Labor has for years been constant in its efforts to secure laws that would raise the age limit for working children, and we will never cease our efforts in that direction until written upon the statute books of every State in this Union are laws forbidding the employment of boys or girls in any kind of manhas first hand charge of the work.

REV. S. B. SNOW GIVES MONDAY TALK AT KING'S CHAPEL

Rev. Sydney B. Snow in his noon address today in King's Chapel said that every man had a chance to get along, if he would only use it.

"Don't stand aside and say, if I had that man's chance I would do differently," said Mr. Snow.

"You can make your own chance, no matter what may be your surroundings. There are so many of these people who are saying we would have done anything, if we had been given a different chance.

"It does not matter much whether you are born in the lap of luxury or in the slums of a great city. You can make your opportunity, and do not stand around and pine for what you can make for yourself."

Former New Bedford Doctor Tells How He Married 12 Years Ago

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 9.—The most surprising set of marriage announcement cards ever circulated in local society are those which have just come from New York City, announcing the marriage of Dr. John J. Cotter, formerly of this city, to Miss Leda Fornault.

The surprise, in this case, is that the announcements say the wedding took place twelve years ago. The marriage was secret.

It also is learned that Dr. Cotter is the father of two children. Friends here, who always had supposed him single, are amazed.

Dr. Cotter is known in medical circles. He was coach for the Columbia and Fordham nines for several seasons. He formerly was an interne at the New York Foundling Asylum. Now he is a practicing physician. The wedding twelve years ago took place when Dr. Cotter was attached to the Foundling Asylum. There he met Miss Leda Fornault, who has recently come to this country from France as a governess.

Dr. Cotter may have married secretly, it is thought, for fear lest the asylum authorities would care for the children of its internes wedded, but why he should keep the wedding secret for twelve years is a mystery.

FLOCK OF HENS HELP MAYOR FITZGERALD BEAT THE H. C. L.

C. L. The fowl are "laying to beat the band," according to His Honor, and he has it straight from his son who has first hand charge of the work.

Working for an Ideal.

Of course we do not expect to secure this high age limit in all States at once, but we shall keep at the work, getting the most favorable law we can, and not being satisfied until we reach our ideal.

I am glad to say that the trend throughout the country is for laws that will give the children better protection and will also give them improved opportunities for education.

Where we find it difficult to secure a child labor law, we make our efforts to secure the passage of compulsory educational laws; thus, to some extent, reaching the same end by another route. Along with our agitation for better educational laws, we are making at present a strong campaign for the vocational education of our children in the public schools.

Tenement Problem Hardest.

I agree with others, who have been quoted as saying that the most difficult phase of this child labor problem is to be found in the work of the children of the tenements, and that the only way that this evil can be stopped is to adopt a law prohibiting all kinds of commercial work by adults or children in homes.

We are moving along and I believe it is only a question of time until child labor will be eliminated from all of the industries of the country. What has been done in the mining industry and will be done in other industries. Most of the legislation affecting the mining industry has been enacted within the past few years, and yet twenty-seven of the thirty-two States in which coal is mined have laws which prohibit the employment of children in the mines. These States also maintain a thorough system of mine inspection which guarantees the enforcement of the law.

All forces engaged in this crusade for the protection of our boys and girls and for the improvement of the race which most naturally follow such protection can count upon the unqualified and earnest support of the American Federation of Labor at all times.

SKIPPERS TELL OF TRAGEDY AND PERIL ON OCEAN

The sea continued today to give up its story of death, suffering, narrow escapes and battered ships as a result of the gale of a few days ago and before. One capsized told of two attempts at suicide by stokers driven crazy by the heat. One man succeeded. The skipper of a fisherman related the loss of one of his men. Another told of drifting two days at the mercy of the storm in peril of crashing on the rocks.

The most thrilling story was told by Captain Isbister of the Kansas, from California and Columbo. She was four days overdue from Gibraltar. One of her lifeboats was gone. The shelter deck amidships was torn away for fifty feet on each side. Ventilators were knocked off. The steel deckhouse was loosened. This was done by the waves that beat on the ship on Saturday and Sunday.

Stoker Tries to Die.

Trouble started on November 24, when the Kasama was plowing through the Indian Ocean. Abdula Goopy, a fireman, was sweating out of the stoke hole, and with a shriek leaped into the sea. The water cooled his evident intention of ending his life. The ship was turned about, and in twelve minutes the crazed fireman was on board.

Goolam Hassein, another fireman, who could not stand the temperature, five days later rushed on deck and dived into the sea. A storm was raging. They searched for Goolam two hours, but gave him up.

What Soofarazk Did.

On the log is the novel record of the actions of Ackoia Soofarazk. The nationality of the man is unknown to the captain. The log, under that name, contains the following story:

Nov. 25—Ackoia Soofarazk, fireman, disappeared. Searched ship two hours. Hidden in bunkers. Deshipped.

Nov. 26—Missing. Hidden in coal bunkers. Deshipped.

Dec. 4—Gone again. Searched two hours. Given up as dead.

Dec. 6—Appears on deck hungry and emaciated. Severely deshipped.

The log is silent as to anything further that happened to the disappearing seaman, but as he was on the job when the ship reaching Boston it is presumed the "severe deshipping" cured him.

Another Ship Trails In.

The Chinese and Japanese ship, Jessaric, Captain Wilds, eleven days overdue, trailed in today. She suffered minor damage, but the most of those on board never expected to see land again. They ran out of coal when they were about thirty miles from Halifax and decided to make that port for coal. Then a heavy fog set in.

The captain decided to bank the fires and leave for. For two days they drifted in the storm, the waves pounding the ship and rolling over it with a noise like thunder peals. The crew is Chinese and Japanese. They were terrified. Soundings were taken every five minutes. After two days of anxiety they were able to take an observation. They found land and drifted sixty miles. They managed to make Halifax per coal today.

On the ship as passengers were C. H. Marchey and his bride, from the Philippines. He is the only man in the island mining business, Captain Wilds said. They had a meeting with them. They made a present of it to Captain Wilds when they reached Boston. They belong in the Philippines and will return to the other side of the world by that route.

AWAIT REPORT OF SLEUTHS IN DONOVAN CASE

The Malden police said today they were ready for the inquest into the cause of the death of Mildred Donovan, the Revere woman who left her home on New Year's Eve with James B. Jenkins, known as "Kid Carter," and whose body was found in Malden the next afternoon.

The date of the inquest has not been fixed, but it will be held the first of next week in the Malden court. Judge Sweetser will preside.

Almost all the members of the police department of Malden who have been connected with the death mystery went to Cambridge today to appear before the Middlesex Grand Jury, either in connection with the Donovan case or other cases in which they are interested.

The fact the District Attorney has in his possession the full medical report, including that of Professor Whitney of Cambridge, and that he has kept the report a secret for several days, has led to the belief that he considers the case one for the Grand Jury.

The Malden police assert they are more than "Kid Carter" was with Mildred Donovan when she died. They do not take any stock in the theory that the woman fell on her face and died of strangulation from blood that flowed from her nose.

If she did fall on her face in an epileptic attack, how did it come that she was found lying on her back with her clothing straightened out, her arms at her sides and is being asked.

Those are questions the police will ask "Kid Carter" when they eventually confront him.

How was the bruise on Millie Donovan's nose inflicted?

Was she stricken with an epileptic fit?

Was she struck by some person?

These questions will solve the mystery. And these answers must be unified by the police.

Then the man proven to have been with Mrs. Donovan when she died, if he says she was stricken with a fit and fell, will be asked to explain why he did not go for help, and why he left her body lying in a public street without notifying anyone.

"IMPORTED" MAGIC WORD FOR WOMEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—That the word "imported" charms the average woman away from the attractions of domestic goods was brought out at the hearing on the earthenware and glassware Payne-Aldrich tariff schedule before the House Committee on Ways and Means.

"Women want imported glass. The word 'imported' charms them, and it covers a multitude of defects," declared William Boehringer of New York. He took off a glass from a merchant friend, who said: "You don't know about these imported things. Only 5 per cent of the women. What do you suppose that Mrs. A. buys in the country? Only milk and a paper."

BOSTON EDITOR SAYS EXPRESS DELAYS TRAINS

Because he believes that the Boston & Maine road considers packages of more importance than people, W. E. Eaton of the Boot and Shoe Recorder protests vigorously against what he terms a crime against passenger traffic.

"I believe more delays are caused, more connections lost, and more tempers lost on account of the heavy express business than for any other reason" is Eaton's opinion.

"The American Express Company is the chief culprit, and I hold that the officers of that company are large holders of New Haven and Boston & Maine stock they care more about their express business than they do for passengers," he says.

Protest Would Be Effective.

Eaton travels daily from Wakefield to Boston and has traveled from one end of the country to the other. He has watched traffic conditions closely and says he has come to the conclusion that a vigorous protest by the public at this time when the parcel post is just beginning to operate would result in a reform that in my opinion would compel a divorce between the express trains and those for passengers.

"The trouble is," says Eaton, "that people do not kick altogether and at the same time. If they did we should soon get what we want in nearly every case.

"This matter of delay from express packages is a large and important question that is more or less vital all over the country, but it is particularly evident here in New England, where trains are late almost hourly and where the complaint is general."

May Introduce Bill.

Mr. Eaton is considering introducing a bill that will put his protests in shape. He says he feels that hundreds of citizens who are compelled to use the trains daily will gladly support such legislation.

"There is some attempt at the present time," says Eaton, "to send out express trains. There is one each leaves Boston at 6 a. m. daily, but even in this case there are two or three passenger coaches.

"Anyone going to investigate the cause of delays can find convincing proof of my contention at such centers of traffic as Lowell, Nashua, Newburyport, Salem, Lynn, or any one of a dozen New England towns."

The Temptations of a Working Girl

By Hal Reade

A Thrilling Story of the Trials of a Beautiful Girl in a Great City

PRINCIPAL CHARACTERS.

MAMIE MALLOY.....The heroine
KATIE KERRIGAN.....Her friend
ANNIE LAWRENCE.....A martyr
AINSLEIGH WHARTON.....The villain
JACK FALLON.....A hero
DICK MALONE.....Just himself

What Has Gone Before

Katie Kerrigan, Annie Lawrence and Mamie Malloy are three girls working in a New York handkerchief factory. Katie, a child of humble parents, is a typical factory girl. Annie, a wan-faced girl, is still weak from a recent illness. Mamie is the beauty of the factory, a tall, magnificent creature. It is she whom the proprietor, Ainsleigh Wharton, a gentlemanly rake, has singled out for his attentions. He calls her into his office and asks her to accept his attentions. Meanwhile the girls outside are joking with Dick Malone, who has pugilistic ambitions. At noon hour Annie is ill. Mamie rests enough cigarettes for her to bring her some fresh air, and in an outburst of emotion tells Annie that Mr. Wharton wants her to be his wife. She speaks of the glorious opportunity in that position. Annie questions the girl about her sweetheart, Jack Fallon, and they worse her that Wharton's attentions bode no good for an innocent girl.

Annie goes further and explains that Ainsleigh Wharton is the father of her little Bess, and that he has cast her off. Mamie believes her. Dick Malone, left alone with Katie Kerrigan, asks her to marry him. She accepts. Just then Annie's father, an intolerable drunkard, enters and demands her wages to buy drink. He threatens her and is about to strike her when brave Jack Fallon arrives in the nick of time and puts the father out. Annie is thrown thus in Mamie's company and begins to unfold the story of his love for her.

Now Go On with the Story

PART I.

"O, JACK," cried Mamie with delight, "you're just too nice for you and your mother!"

Mamie had seated herself on the stool and Jack, standing behind her, had slipped his hand around her waist. Leaning over her shoulder, he said:

"And you, too, Mamie, if you will come to it. I know more about running out a chair than making love, but I can tell you that I love you and that every dollar I have earned has been your dollar or your dollar. It's a pretty little home down there, and I want you to share it with me."

Unknown to the happy young sweethearts, Ainsleigh Wharton had walked into the room and listened as Jack proposed.

"My patent, if I succeed in perfecting it, will revolutionize the chair-making industry and make me rich. Then we can buy a better house. I am getting good wages, Mamie. You will be able to live comfortably, everything that a workingman's wife could have. Will you, Mamie? Will you be my wife?"

Mamie looked into his face with happy tears in her eyes, but before she could reply Wharton roughly asked:

"What are you doing here?"

Jack straightened up and turned to face his wealthy rival.

"I came to see Miss Malloy," he answered proudly.

"You are not aware, sir, that our rules forbid visitors?"

"I have never seen such a rule posted about the factory," Jack replied.

"Nevertheless, it exists, sir," said Wharton, looking angrily at the young workman.

"Who Is That Loafer?"

"Very well, sir, I shall go," said Jack, walking toward the door. "I will call at my first duties is to obey the rule of any factory. I shall wait for you tonight at quitting time," he said, glancing at Mamie.

"All right, Jack," she answered smilingly.

"Thank you," he replied, as he left the room.

"Who is that loafer?" demanded Wharton, turning fiercely on the girl, who blushed as his employer.

"The man I love," she answered, throwing back her head and looking him squarely in the eyes.

"A common factory hand," he sneered.

"No, an honest workingman."

"Wages about $10 a week, I presume."

"I don't know what Jack's wages are but, large or small, he earns them."

"Oh, quite a paragon, no doubt, but are you get the kind you ask for. Simply fill out free you not aware that I have been paying you $25 a week?"

"And you consider him," said Wharton sneeringly, "when I offer you my name, my wealth and my station, I, rich and refined. He, dusty, illiterate and a wage earner. Look at my hands; look at his."

Wharton held up his carefully manicured hands, adorned with diamonds before the girl's face.

Mamie glanced at them and turning away in disgust remarked:

"Yes, there is a diamond on your finger. Jack has none, except on a warm day when he is at work they are on his brow. Diamonds of honest sweat, the gems of labor, rich when they are spent for the woman he loves, fall into the flowers of her heart and sparkle there as pure and bright as a drop of dew in the heart of a rose."

"Indeed," sneered Wharton.

"Yes, indeed. It's hands like its honest hands which take the raw material and build for you men of wealth your factories and your fortunes."

"Forget him, Mamie," said Wharton coming closer to her, speaking in tones he tried to make affectionate. "Can't you see that I am jealous of him? You know I love you. I have told you so. Forget the low fellow and come with me."

"Mr. Wharton, Jack has asked me to be his wife. He has bought a little home for us. He has offered me his unstarched name, his life-long devotion. What do you offer?"

"My love, wealth, diamonds, horses, carriages servants, and one long glad day of happiness and love."

"And what else?" asked Mamie.

"What else?" he asked with surprise. "Is not that enough?"

"To buy an honest girl's honor—no!"

"Why, what do you mean?"

"That you have forgotten one thing."

"What is that, pray?"

"Look to Your Own Class"

"Marriage. A small thing called a wedding. You come to me and insult me. You would not dare go into the drawing rooms of the wealthy and do this. No, but you have picked upon me because I am only a working girl in your factory. Turn to those of your own class, Mr. Wharton—those women who sit idly and turn their diamond rings about their fingers from the want of honest work to do. Your chances are better with some of them, for I tell you to your face that there is more virtue in the factory classes than you will find among the aristocrats of the world."

Wharton shrank back, amazed and confused.

"You refuse me?" he said.

"Yes, Ainsleigh Wharton, I refuse you. Keep your diamonds, horses, your wealth, and I will keep my honor."

"Superb! How your eyes sparkle and flash fire," he said, coming toward her. "Kiss me just once."

"Don't dare to touch me!" cried Mamie, eluding his outstretched arms and fleeing through the door.

Wharton tried to follow her, but the return of the factory hands compelled him to desist.

CHAPTER IV.

MAMIE met Jack at the door that evening, and the two young people, happy in their new love, walked to their humble homes, chatting of their plans for the future.

Wharton did not talk with Mamie after her refusal. That evening he dined at the Casino, but was so ill humored that his companions left him early. Life in the cigarette factory resumed its daily routine. The boxing between Katie and Dick had been postponed, because the gloves had been borrowed by Wharton's office boy for a "do" at his club.

Wharton avoided Mamie. One morning Thomas Bates, foreman by name, but really a spy and informer, entered his office. Bates was shrivelled and beat. His face seemed to have shrunk with his frame. His crafty eyes never remained still. He walked on tip-toe and was decidedly the cat in the girls breaking one of his many rules, in order to fine them.

"There you are, Mr. Wharton," he said bowing and rubbing his hands as if washing them in invisible water. "Is there any trouble I can relieve you? I am always ready to serve you, Mr. Wharton."

Wharton looked at Bates with contempt. He despised him as every man does a disloyal employe.

"Bates," said Wharton, looking at him steadily for a moment, as if seeking something which has just been put to him.

"Yes, Mr. Wharton," replied the menial.

"Do you know where Mamie Malloy's jacket hangs in the shop?"

"Yes, Mr. Wharton, the brown one, sir. I know it very well, sir. It is the only one, sir," he said with a wink at Mr. Wharton, who pretended not to notice him. Bates must have gotten it lately.

"Here Bates," said Wharton.

The owner of the cigarette factory had taken five new twenty dollar gold certificates from his waistcoat pocket and handed them to Bates.

"Yes, Mr. Wharton, what shall I do with these?"

"Put them in the brown jacket pocket," said Mr. Wharton, swinging around in his chair to look at Bates.

"Yes, Mr. Wharton," replied Bates, backing to the door at this sign of his dismissal.

Dick and Katie

As the office door opened, laughter and applause were heard in the shop, as it was noon hour and the girls and boys were free to do as they pleased.

Dick was standing in the middle of the floor facing Katie, surrounded by the other boys and girls who worked in the factory. He had a pair of boxing gloves under his arm and his face was wreathed in smiles.

"Aw, come on, come on," he said. "I'm just itching to git at it. Say, Katie, de feist time dat I hit yours on de pint of de chin I'll knock yer head clean off in de udder end of de Brooklyn Bridge."

"Aw, dat's all rite, Dickie; dat's eatteral, day ain't nuttin' but dead ones in Brooklyn enny ways."

"Say, Mamie," said Dickie, slipping on the gloves, "go down to the office and telephone for de ambulance or a patrol waggin or sumin' like dat. We'll want sumpin' to take Katie home in. De idee o' her goin' up again me, and me trainin' ter meet the champ."

"Hout be so sure about diss scrape, Dickie," Katie followed him in putting on her gloves, assuming the position of a fighter.

"Just remember de story about David and Goliabby."

"Oh, Katie, you mean David and Goliath," interrupted Mamie.

"They must a bin seckon ratters," said Dickie, looking over his shoulder at Mamie. "I never heard of 'em. Come on, come on. Oh, it's a shame to do it, honest it is. Wait a minute—wait a minute."

Katie had approached Dick and was landing for his face. Dick threw up his hands to protect himself and stepped back ward.

"Aw, wat's eatin youse?" Wot's wrong?" asked Katie.

"I was jist thinkin'. I'm goin' to slug me wife.

"Yer wife dat's goin' ter be," said Katie, nevis rushing toward him, putting up her guard.

"You jes in a hurry, Dickie. Dey usually waits till after deys marrit before dey does dat. Come on, come on."

"Wait—wait," said Dick, dancing away from her. "Bles her good-ey, Annie, kiss her good-by, Mamie."

"Never mind dat," said Katie, now thoroughly in earnest. "Come on."

Dick was dancing about the room, assuming all the postures of the fighters he had ever seen in the ring or pictured in the papers. He would dance up to Katie and dance away again. Katie stood perfectly still, waiting for the opportunity to break down his guard.

"Aw, I dassent do it," said Dick. "I dassent hit yer, Katie. It ud be murder, dat's nit. Plain effry day murder."

"Come on, come on."

"Look et 'er standing dere in de face of death, callin' et to come on and me a-lovin' to see de closing."

Dick had dropped his guard for a moment, while calling the attention of his companions to Katie. She had taken quick advantage of her opportunity and running in had struck Dick a powerful blow on the jaw. Dick collapsed, falling in a heap, lying perfectly still.

Surprised and astonished, she leaned over him and said, "Come on, git up, Dickie, Dickie. Why, he's out with a single punch."

Katie Knocks Out Dick

"Kill em, mudder," said Dickie, stirring uneasily, "it is time to go to de factory?"

Dickie slowly arose and faced a laughing circle of friends. "Where am I?" said he, bewildered. "Is breakfast ready, mudder?"

Realizing the full import of the disgrace which had come upon him by being knocked out by a woman, he gasped, and looked out by the entrance. I'm disgraced for life. Lemme out of dis!"

Dick started to run out of the room, but was stopped at the door by Mr. Wharton, who had entered with his undersrapper and a police officer.

"Stay where you are," said Wharton to Dick. "I let no one leave the room. Guard the door, Mr. Officer."

"Yes der easy ting roun, Mr. Wharton!" said Katie.

"Yes, I have been robbed," replied Wharton.

"Robbed!" said Mamie.

"Yes, robbed," replied Wharton, glancing at her significantly.

"Mr. Officer," he continued, turning to the policeman, who stood by the doorway, "the other morning I took out of my safe five new twenty-dollar gold certificates and laid them on my desk. They have disappeared. There were only one of my employes in my office on that morning."

Annie at once realized that a plot had been hatched against Mamie. The other employes stood silently about awaiting developments. Annie started toward Mamie's side and said "Mamie."

THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

JEROME JONES ASKS REDUCTION ON CHINAWARE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Importers of glassware and American manufacturers of that product appeared today before the House Committee on Ways and Means at its hearings on schedule B of the tariff, the earthenware and glassware schedule. The American manufacturers claimed the foreign product was in the hands of a foreign trust, which paid its employes the smallest of wages and used unfair methods in suppressing competition here.

It was charged that the importers of plate glass were merely the agents of the foreign trust. Denis A. Hayes, president of the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, made a plea for the retention of the present duties on blown glass, saying the glass blowers were being paid good wages and that if the tariff were reduced the blowers would probably suffer a decrease in wages.

Jerome Jones of Boston, chairman of the importers and Wholesalers' Association of Pottery Manufacturers, urged a reduction in the duties on chinaware. He said the pottery industry in the United States is no longer an infant industry and does not need the present high rate of protection.

He said the present duty of sixty per cent. really amounts to ninety per cent. by virtue of ocean freight rates. He declared that the foreign chinaware was much better and much more popular than the American product. Part of the alleged inferiority of the American product he blamed on the Potters' Union.

Back Bay Families Need Americanizing, Says Dr. Crothers

"The old families of the Back Bay are far more in need of being Americanized than any other body of people in the United States," Dr. Samuel McChord Crothers told a meeting of editors of publications in foreign languages at the Twentieth Century Club.

"The true American," he said, "is a combination of all races, and includes Italians, Jews and Germans, as well as the old New England stock. An un-American-ized New Englander is as foreign as an un-Americanized European."

Abraham Aiperi, editor of the Jewish Advocate, started a laugh by saying that it was the duty of the foreign press of Boston to "Americanize the immigrants without making them materialistic."

"Mischa Elman," he said, "is a young man who has succeeded. Therefore he is called a Russian. Elman is not a Russian. He is a Jew."

Superintendent of Schools Dyer emphasized the need of educating the parents of immigrant school children in the customs and spirit of the country.

15,000 WOMEN JOIN STRIKING NEW YORK GARMENT WORKERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The number of garment workers now on strike in New York city was swelled to 140,000 today, when 15,000 white goods workers and 5,000 operatives deserted the factories. Most of the 20,000 who struck today are women.

Three policemen, charged with brutality to striking garment workers, were placed on trial here today.

The strikers prepared to put 60,000 men and women in line for a street parade Monday. Mayor Gaynor and the police have not decided whether they will permit the parade.

SUICIDE'S NOTE TO DORCHESTER GIRL MAY REVEAL REASON

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—Two letters left by Frederick A. Sobernheimer, 48, who shot himself in a hotel here, it is believed will explain the reason for his suicide. He was a young lawyer, residing in Roxboro, this city.

One letter was addressed to his unmarried sister and the other to Miss Irene Bertel of Dorchester, Mass. The family say Miss Bertel is a cousin of Mr. Sobernheimer. The coroner took charge of the letters, but later returned them unopened to Mr. Sobernheimer's father.

WOMAN SWEARS 'FRESNO DAN' IS REAL RUSSELL

Mrs. George B. Moulton, a long-time resident of Newton, an intimate friend of the late Senator and Mrs. Daniel Russell of Melrose, and who visited them the day Daniel Blake Russell left home in June, 1885, identified "Fresno Dan" today as Daniel Blake Russell, at East Cambridge.

A moment before Mrs. Moulton had said of "Dakota Dan": "I have seen 'Dakota Dan.' He does not look like the Daniel Blake Russell I knew. I never saw him before."

Attorney Nason pointed to "Fresno Dan," seated nearby, and asked:

"Mrs. Moulton, do you know who this man is?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Moulton, earnestly, "he is Daniel Blake Russell, the son of my friends, Mary and Daniel Russell."

She is the second witness at the present hearing, outside of William C. Russell, to identify the Fresno claimant.

The "opposition" on the "Dakota Dan" side of the case tittered, as though in derision of this evidence for "Fresno Dan," but Mrs. Moulton was emphatic.

Mrs. Moulton was the first witness, before Master Peyey today, after a two-days' recess. Nason Dan was not present.

Mrs. Moulton said Daniel Blake Russell was a boy of "strong individuality but of peculiar personality."

Asked to specify, she said he was always refined, with a sympathetic voice, but that he was marked by hesitancy, embarrassment, stammering and difficulty in speech. He was slightly built, sloping shoulders, steel-blue eyes and full, projecting forehead.

Attorney Scharton, counsel for "Dakota Dan," cross-examined Mrs. Moulton as to her metaphysical beliefs. She denied being a spiritualist, but said she was interested in metaphysics. Mr. Scharton said:

"Look at me. Do you think that by studying my face you can read my inner thoughts?"

"I prefer not to answer," said Mrs. Moulton.

Offences Which Make Women a Nuisance

Copyright, 1912, by the Star Publishing Co.

THE people who mean to be annoying and unsatisfactory are few.

The few who are so. Without meaning it, are many.

There are your correspondents who write you letters demanding immediate answers, and carefully append the date to their letters, and leave off the address.

You spend hours in trying to look it the number and street, you look in your telephone book, and then you see that they live in an apartment house, and you cannot recall the name of the apartment. And so precious time and vital force is wasted, all because a thoughtless friend had not the good sense and foresight to give the number and name of her abode when writing you.

Possibly your friend may blame you for not having a well-kept address book. But your address book is not always at your hand. You do not carry it about with you when leaving home; and your letters meanwhile follow you.

It should be the habit with every individual writing a letter to add the full address. It requires but a moment's work and care, and may save the recipient of the letter hours of frustration and annoyance.

The persons who write you letters on their own affairs asking a favor and failing to enclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope, are also verging on the nuisance line.

Because one who receives many letters finds the pressure of correspondence [illegible] and feels overburdened by it, is not excusable for rudeness, or inconsiderate conduct.

Therefore, one who asks the favor of a reply from anyone, even the most intimate friend or relative should inclose a self-addressed envelope.

The use of pink ink and red ink in addressing are also against our correspondence. Good black ink is very cheap, and everywhere available, and there is no town so remote and small there a type machine may not be found and someone who can write it more or less well. With these aids [illegible] permissible.

Only lovers and very close and intimate friends should write long letters. And the friends should not, unless they have very interesting things to say and can say them in an interesting manner.

Then they should write often and say much; for a brilliant, well written and witty letter is one of life's choicest gifts to receive.

And it is an accomplishment which should not be lost in this age of hurry.

One who acts in a private conversation, or in any public audience where women wear hats, must realize how thoughtless and become a menace to comfort, and even to safety and sight.

The feminine hatpin is today more dangerous than the sword in our land. Many cases of serious injury to the eyes of unwary fellow travelers have been reported, and the loss of eyesight has resulted in more than one instance.

Ascending and descending a stairway, a sudden bending or turning back as much as forward, in fact, [illegible] positions in public places where these awful spears protrude from women's hats and [illegible] wounds or even death.

It has been said that German, ever on the alert to be first in a progressive move, has passed a law making a crime for which capital punishment is the penalty.

And every hatpin would be about [illegible] should be made a misdemeanor.

[illegible] before we know of any [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] about the dinner [illegible] hatpin must prove to others and use it in a manner which prevents it from becoming a menace to the safety of the public.

Woman Crusader Comes to Boston to Wage War on Long Hat Pins

By EVELINE GARDNER

MRS. STUART LEWIS of Lakehurst, N. J., is in Boston to begin a little war on long hatpins.

She is a strenuous opponent of the long, dangerous pins that protrude from women's hats, and has invented a hat pin cutter to help her in her crusade.

The long hat pin battle was begun recently by the Boston Telephone Girls Union, who passed a resolution condemning long hat pins as dangerous to the public welfare. This action by the phone girls was the result of the death of James Sinclair, a Scottish organist on [illegible] who was [illegible] scratched in the forehead by a hat pin after leaving an evening party at Revere.

Mrs. Lewis will begin operations at Wellesley College. She expects to gather little army of anti-long hatpin college girls about her and then start in every store, [illegible] and hotel in Greater Boston.

Mrs. Lewis has chiefly on Mrs. Glendower Evans and Mrs. Thomas P. Lewis and received the assurance of their hearty co-operation.

The long hat pin crusader said to me today:

I have come to Boston for the express purpose of [illegible] Boston women to the hatpin cutter. I am opposed to these long, sharp pins because they are a real peril to [illegible] in a crowd.

[illegible] dangerous [illegible] putting on a hat. My first move [illegible] Wellesley College. I am going to interest the students there and ask them to go [illegible] to [illegible] for the short but pithy [illegible].

GAS VICTIM AND RESCUER FOUND IN MANHOLE

Dennis Lowney, an Edison inspector, was overcome by gas in a Back Bay manhole today, and Edward A. Wilford, a fellow inspector, was overcome trying to rescue Lowney. Both men were finally brought up from the manhole by other workmen and were sent to the City Hospital. They are expected to recover.

How the gas came to be in the manhole or whether the sudden and extreme cold had anything to do with it remains to be told. The Board of Health was notified.

CENTRAL BANK IS FAVORED BY THE CREDIT MEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Characterizing the existing monetary system as one which retards commerce and is a menace to many business men, an opposition memorandum of the National Association of Credit Men, with headquarters in New York, appeared today before the Glass sub-committee, which is framing a currency reform bill.

The witnesses presented a joint letter which said in part:

We would direct the attention of Congress upon the principles which in any monetary system must be the main spring for flexibility, soundness and economy. These are:

First, a central institution, soundly organized with the functions of a depository for banking reserves and national funds; the issuance of currency on proper reserve; the discount or rediscount of sound commercial paper and the establishment of such branches as the changing relative trading importances and the protection of our stock of gold.

Second, that the country be divided into not less than twenty-five zones, or districts, each district to be represented upon a clearing house executive basis, the banks in each district being subject to regulation that will insure safety to depositors and credit banking and that in each district there be one central city designated where an agency of the central institution is to be located for responsibility in the assembling of bank resources, the discounting of commercial paper and the exposition and economical clearance of checks.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Manager W. C. Sills of the Reming Motor Company had a striking illustration of how badly Bostonians are in want of a knowledge of the Spanish language when two Spanish merchants walked into the salesroom of the Republic Motor Company in the Motor Mart, and made it known in a series of signs and a few words broken English that they wanted to purchase a little car in a hurry.

Mr. Rasmussen, one of the salesmen is strong on Danish, Guy Hartwell knows as many as ten words of German and Jimmy Rowlands knew something of Chinese, but no one knew one word of Spanish.

Mr. Sills managed to make himself understood and there must have been some sign language, for the two men left the store of the Republic Motor Company in the Motor Mart, and made it known in a series of signs and a few words broken English that they wanted to purchase a little car in a hurry.

Mr. Rasmussen, one of the salesmen is strong on Danish, Guy Hartwell knows as many as ten words of German and Jimmy Rowlands knew something of Chinese, but no one knew one word of Spanish.

Mr. Sills managed to make himself understood and there must have been some sign language, for the two men left the store of the New York show. He saw the horses Major Fitzgerald's son is exercising in Spanish in the public schools.

An exhibit in the Grand Central Palace at the New York show that will interest Bostonians as well as New Yorkers is one of the whole trade, will be the display put in by the Lenox Motor Car Company. Manager Blanchard says that the 1913 models will be shown and predicts its "body" car manufactured in Boston prepared to keep pace with the rest of the trade.

One of the unique features of the 1913 motor car exhibition in Paris was a Cadillac limousine large enough to carry two children on some the knee of their mother. The little model is a reproduction of the large Cadillac limousine except that it has every detail of the latter, including the original cranking device, which is a regular feature of the big car. With the exception of this cranking device the little machine will travel some fifteen miles on one full tank of gasoline at a speed not to exceed ten an hour.

The miniature was made under the direction of F. S. Bennett, the Cadillac director in London, and upon the design of the late Cadillac-to-England, now appointed by Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra. It will hereafter be exhibited in the Cadillac building, Paris, guided by the hands of the youthful member of the royal household.

Ed F. Reynard, the popular exhibitor quiet now appearing at a local theatre, but only uses an automobile in his daily business, but also is an enthusiastic motorist, and every spring is in evidence, taking advantage of his spare time for driving trips through the parks and boulevards. He spends his vacation in the Pocono region under roadster and visits out of the way places in search of something new and novel. He has arranged a clever campaign with and with this and a supply of food and gasoline he guides into the wildest spots he can find.

The Marion Motor Car Company announces an interesting change in its selling agreement. After thoroughly testing it has adopted the Westinghouse self starter made for the Marion de Luxe as a part of its regular equipment. It has also made provision for the installation of this starter upon the 30-40 Hemenway models at a nominal additional cost.

The Westinghouse system embodies a number of interesting features which are exclusive to it and make it a decided improvement over electric starters now in general use. Principal among these is a roller clutch which prevents the small electric motor from being driven by the engine. It also prevents the gas engine from turning the electric starting motor at a speed which would be destructive.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STATE STREET, Jan. 9.—Motion.—The local stock market opened dull and with rumors ranging lower. At the end of the first hour trading, Hancock and Lake were in sensational fall while Butte and Superior and North Butte were higher.

In New York traders expected that the new plan of the Union Pacific management for disposing of Southern Pacific stock holdings would be made public today. Another looked-for announcement is the Baltimore & Ohio plan for new financing.

In New York in the second hour many of the leaders were higher but the gains were irrational.

The cotton market there opened weak, being influenced by the ginning report, which was interpreted as a bearish factor. Opening prices were two to fourteen points lower. There was a flood of selling orders, although spot houses and room shorts supported the market. Futures and spot in Liverpool were steady.

Prices Irregular in New York.

The list was irregular at the opening in New York, with gains and losses about evenly divided. There was a renewal of activity in United States Rubber, which opened ¼ higher and increased its gain to a point within fifteen minutes. Among the other advances were Western Maryland, ¼; Utah Copper, ½; Steel preferred, ⅝; Southern Pacific, ¼; Mexican Petroleum, ¼; Great Northern preferred, ¼; American Beet Sugar, ¼; California Petroleum, ⅛. Canadian Pacific started ¼ higher, but lost its advance. Included among the losses were Woolworth, ⅜; Steel common, ⅛; Union Pacific, ⅛; Pennsylvania, ⅛; Distillers Securities, ⅛ and St. Paul, ⅛.

Amalgamated was unchanged at first, but later advanced fractionally. American Smelting and Brooklyn Rapid Transit were also unchanged. The Cuba was irregular. Americans in London were sluggish. The decline in Canadian Pacific there was due to profit taking.

J. P. Morgan & Co. Deposits.

Only three financial institutions in the United States carry aggregate deposits exceeding $162,000,000, which is the amount of idle capital held by J. P. Morgan & Co. for investment for customers. The three institutions whose deposits exceed that sum when they reported their condition in November were the National City Bank of New York, with total deposits of $211,416,088; the Continental and Commercial National of Chicago, with $185,556,455, and the Guaranty Trust Company of New York (a Morgan concern), with $168,417,864.

Cotton Ginning Report.

The Census Bureau at Washington has issued a report showing that 12,912,257 bales, counting round as half bales, were ginned from the growth of 1912 to January 1, compared with 14,317,962 for 1911 and 11,068,415 for 1910. Round bales for the entire crop year are 77,299, compared with 56,227 for 1911 and 109,232 for 1910. Sea Island included 67,329 for 1912, 105,088 for 1911 and 82,452 for 1910.

Copper Weak in London.

The London copper metal market opened weak, with spot 16s. 3d. lower and futures 1s. 6d. lower. This was the result of the action of the banks in advancing the discount rate. Consumers are in the market for only small lots, as they are waiting for the new year to begin before they make any large purchases. The London market closed weak, with spot 16s. 3d. lower and futures 1s. 6d. lower.

Total sales since the first of January have now approximated 50,000,000 pounds, or about the entire United States output for the heaviest seller. Yesterday's market continued quiet, with the leading producers maintaining their 17¾ cent asking price and competitors still having a few small lots at easier points.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England discount rate remained unchanged at 5 per cent. today. The proportion of its reserve to liabilities is now 46 per cent, against 39.60 last week and 47.50 one year ago. Private discount rates are 4⅞ per cent. during this week last year.

The December gross earnings of the Illinois Central road are increased $650,000. For the last six months of 1912 the increase was $2,809,511.

The New York bond market was more active yesterday, railroad issues being in better demand as well as the higher class of industrials. Sales totalled $2,735,000.

There is a falling off in orders in the United States for locomotive material. This was expected. There is a fair amount of business pending which will be placed before the end of the month.

The employees of the American Tram Company were pleasantly surprised yesterday when, following a substantial gratuity accompanied by a note of appreciation from the directors, Augustus P. Loring, president, at the stockholders' meeting held at noon, Louis K. Liggett was added to the Board of Directors. Mr. Liggett is president of the United Drug Company.

It is denied that the express companies are going to raise the parcel post by cutting their rates on small packages.

The Bank of Bengal at Calcutta raised its discount rate from 7 to 8 per cent today.

LACK OF THIRD WITNESS COSTS FIANCEE LEGACY

Because her fiance, Edward L. Dalton, forgot or neglected to get a third witness to his will, Mrs. Zaidee I. Parsons of Salem is barred from sharing in his estate, which, under the will executed, would be left to her. The will was witnessed by but two people.

Edgar J. Whelpley, postmaster of Salem, who was named administrator, has practically settled Mr. Dalton's affairs. The heir-at-law, according to the probate court officials, were Mrs. Clara A. Poland of Worcester and Mrs. Mary E. Page of Somerville, aunts of Mr. Dalton. There can be no contest.

THE SMART PEOPLE

of Boston are all on the dancing tiptoe of delight over "SOMETHING NEW," which has come to town—but let Mr. H. T. Parker of The Boston Transcript tell you about it:

A refreshing and pleasant diversion for those who are sated with the cheekish or the sensual exhibits of musical shows. Here is music that is both light and musical—full of sparkling airs—thoroughly in its dainty rhythms as building in its quick turns of humor and fancy, as pleasing and entertaining, as full of dry, bright tang as that same wine on the tongue."

No Democratic Administration Should Contract Our Country's Frontiers

"The Philippines are our frontier now. We don't know what is going on out there, and presently I hope to deprive ourselves of that frontier."—Governor Wilson at Staunton.

The AMERICAN sincerely hopes that President-elect Wilson will not commit himself in advance to the contraction of American territory, nor permit Mr. Bryan to persuade him now or hereafter to do so.

Mr. Bryan has always been wrong in advocating this un-American and un-Democratic policy. Mr. Bryan fought the campaign of 1900 on this issue of contracting our territory by relinquishing the Philippines. The people of the United States repudiated his plan by nearly a million votes.

It would be an inauspicious beginning of President Wilson's administration to revive an advocacy which wrecked the Democratic party twelve years ago.

What today would be the scope and status of this great Republic if the opposition to expansion and the spirit of contraction had ruled our earlier counsels?

The expansion of our territory along proper lines has always been a Democratic policy, and a popular one. Thomas Jefferson believed in it and advocated it, and the "Louisiana Purchase" is, perhaps, the greatest glory of his Administration.

There was bitter, if restricted antagonism to that purchase in Jefferson's day, and a Presidential issue was made of it. But in the election Jefferson carried every Electoral vote except those of Connecticut and Delaware and two of Maryland.

The Democrats, in 1844, nominated James K. Polk for President on a platform calling for the "Reannexation of Texas and the Reoccupation of Oregon," and although the Whigs put up their great Henry Clay for President in opposition, Democracy and expansion carried the day.

In 1846 Oregon Territory was made part of the United States against the opposition of the Little Americans. Also, in Polk's Democratic Administration, General Taylor's brilliant victories in Mexico ended a war which resulted in the cession by Mexico of New Mexico and California, with the stand-still party protesting as eagerly and as vainly as ever.

Always—in 1803, and in 1844-6, as in 1900 and in 1913—the same high type of intellectual and impractical men—standpat reactionaries—have opposed the advance of American territory and its expansion if the issue was made. Such men, however honest and well-meaning, are narrow, the foes to progress and growth and out of step with the patriotic spirit and stride of the nation. They are the conservative standpatters of all time.

Of them Ernest Renan said: "If one of them had stood by the throne of God when He spoke the word, 'Let there be Light,' he would have laid his hand upon the arm of the Almighty and protested, 'No, Lord, not yet.'"

If these men who opposed Jefferson and Polk and Democracy in 1803 and 1844 and 1848 were alive today, they would have been ready to stand by Bryan, or any President who agreed with Bryan, in giving away the great strategic islands of the Philippines and contracting the frontier of our country.

If these intellectual holdbacks had succeeded in the early annals this continent might have been divided half-and-half between the Republic of America, and the Kingdoms of England and France and Spain.

If these Little Americans had their way today—as they will never have it—the frontier or the Republic would be driven eastward by two thousand miles and the strategic defence of the Pacific abandoned to Japan.

Once more the AMERICAN hopes that President-elect Wilson is too good a Democrat to follow this narrow and dangerous policy of contraction.

More Pay for Letter Carriers

This Should Be One Feature of Parcel Post—and Without Delay

Copyright, 1913, by American Journal-Examiner.

The parcel post is the most important step in government since the Civil War.

It means for the distribution of material objects what the telephone means for the distribution of thought.

The parcel post, which will constantly increase in usefulness and in scope, will do more for the prosperity of the average citizen, more for the convenience of the business man and the manufacturer, than anything that this government HAS EVER DONE.

Every citizen, manufacturer and merchant should not forget THE LETTER CARRIER, UPON WHOSE BACK THE LOAD IS TO BE CARRIED.

The men that carry the mails are underpaid now. It would be an outrage to add to their burden without considerably increasing their pay.

With the increased cost of living, the letter carriers have been neglected, and their rights have been ignored.

And now the parcel post, which will do so much for other citizens, is added to the heavy load of the letter carriers.

The pay of the letter carriers should be increased at least $4 per week. And some Democratic Congressman, not afraid to spend the public money wisely, should introduce a bill to that effect and get it passed as quickly as possible.

This recommendation, which will be published in all of the Hearst newspapers, will go into at least 2,000,000 of American homes. And from every one of these homes there ought to go a letter to a Congressman and to a Senator demanding fair treatment for mail carriers.

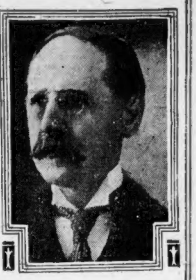
Plenty of Room on This Planet for 10,000 Years to Come Without Being Over-peopled -:-



Science Is Making Vastnesses Fertile and Earth Can Support Ten Times the Population It Has Now

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

PESSIMISTS—persons who see only the worst side of every thing—often talk of the over-peopling of the earth. They think that it is getting crowded, and look upon wars, famines and decreasing birth-rates as providential devices for preventing men and women from becoming too numerous and making things uncomfortable for the chosen few who like to own a hundred thousand acres apiece, to be laid out in parks and preserves. They are like the Scotch laird who discouraged large families among his tenants because he feared that too many human beings would interfere with his game and spoil his shooting. According to these persons, there is a growing danger that before long millions of human beings will be literally crowded off the earth because it will be inconvenient to make room for them.

In truth, however, there is plenty of room on the earth, and the great mother could easily maintain ten times as many children as she now possesses.

No doubt the world is getting a little crowded in small spots, but if we look at it as a whole we see that the centres of population are only like a few anthills scattered over a vast field, most of which is unoccupied.

It would be a disgrace to mankind if, ten thousand years from now, a single human being should perish from lack of sufficient sustenance furnished by the earth to support its inhabitants.

The land surface of the globe covers over 50,000,000 square miles. According to the census and estimates made in 1910, it contains nearly 2,000,000,000 inhabitants, an average of 40 to the square mile. Leaving out of account the mountains, the deserts and the ice-covered lands about the poles, there must be at least 30,000,000 square miles capable of supporting a dense population, especially with the aid of modern scientific methods and modern machinery for the cultivation of the soil. If the whole 30,000,000 square miles could be made to sustain a population as dense as that of Belgium, the earth would have about 20,000,000,000 inhabitants. If the average density were only 200 to the square mile instead of 650, as in Belgium, the total population would be 6,000,000,000.

A glance at a population chart shows what simple children we have been in our so-called conquest of the earth. Like children, we have only taken what we could get without effort. On the chart you will see a few elongated dark spots, following the great river valleys, which indicate where men have gathered like hanging clusters of bees in swarming time. The biggest clusters are in the valleys of China's two great rivers, the Hoang-Ho and the Yang-tse-Kiang, in the valley of the Ganges in India, and in the valley of the Nile in Egypt. Our immense American river valleys have not yet turned black on the population chart. The other notable clusters of human bees are scattered in little specks over Europe.

The soil of the river valleys is rich and ready to pour out its vegetable treasures, and therefore men have crowded into them. But look at what has been done in the past few years in some of the so-called desert regions of our great Western country and you will need no further demonstration of the fact that it only requires the application of brains in order to make the earth almost anywhere bloom with life.

Our population in 1910 was about 91,000,000, living on an area of 3,566,000 square miles, an average of between 25 and 26 human beings to the square mile. There cannot be the slightest doubt that this could be increased to an average of 200 to the square mile, making a population for the United States of more than 700,000,000. Very likely this could be increased to a thousand millions with the aid of modern science.

The vast continent of Africa, with an area of more that 12,000,000 square miles, certainly does not contain more than 150,000,000 inhabitants, an average of less than thirteen to the square mile. Yet at least half of Africa is very fertile, and even the Sahara Desert possesses the potential elements of fertility, only awaiting development. It is probable that Africa could maintain more than a thousand million of people, if it were thoroughly civilized. China, with 4,277,000 square miles, supports 440,000,000 people, and India, with 1,773,000 square miles, has 315,000,000 inhabitants.

South America covers 7,000,000 square miles and contains say 46,000,000 people, an average not much above six to the square mile. It is rich enough to have at least 500,000,000.

No, the earth is not being over-populated. But some people are grabbing too much.

One of the remedies for this state of things is indicated by the negro educator, Booker T. Washington, who on his recent trip through Europe, as shown in Hearst's Magazine for January, noted that in Denmark the peasant farmers now own three-fourths of the farms, while the number of small farms there is constantly increasing. In the United States, in 1910, there were 6,361,502 farms, only 3,354,897 of which were entirely owned by the men who worked them. The people of Denmark are setting an example that we might well follow.

THE PASSING OF BAILEY

Editorial Comment Upon the Career of Joseph W. Bailey and His Retirement from the United States Senate.

(From the New York Evening Mail.)

The State of Texas and the United States of America will have occasion to congratulate each other on the day when Joseph W. Bailey quits the Senate. * * *

But now he goes out, to the general rejoicing. He put his personal welfare—or his own mistaken idea of it—before the service of the public. He is discredited and condemned. His case is a warning to every man who enters the service of the people. He who seeks to use public office even as an indirect means of acquiring wealth very become rich, but sooner or later he will lose the esteem of the world.

(From the New York Evening Sun.)

In plain fact, Senator Bailey has failed and failed lamentably when his talents are considered * * * The fight for the Constitution as a living, growing organism will go on. The great majority of the American people still love and respect it. But such advocates as Senator Bailey can aid but little in its defence.

(From the New York Tribune.)

This time there was no grand rush to restrain Senator Bailey from offering his resignation. The Senate now fully accepts his judgment that he will feel much more at home outside the body than in it.

(From the Jackson (Miss.) News.)

How much more appropriate, profitable and timely it would be if Mr. Bailey could deliver his parting sermon on the methods practiced by the trusts and the interests in conducting national legislation! How his great mind and splendid oratorical talents could illuminate that most timely and overshadowing subject if he was free to enter upon it!

But, alas! what a small drop of oil vitiates a great statesman and brings all his fame and abilities to naught!

(From the Baltimore News.)

Mr. Bailey is closing his eyes to the facts when he denies that there has been a right, and even a public duty, to assail men and methods that have degraded the highest legislative body in America. Without this corrective force of public opinion the evils would have multiplied and the Senate would have become a real menace to popular institutions.

(From the New York Sun.)

As a Senator, Mr. Bailey has never shown any real promise, and certainly no performance. * * * The Senate will get along very well without Mr. Bailey; he will be missed only by those who have taken him seriously as an orator.
